DIRECTIONS FOR USE

The arrangement is according to the Dewey Decimal Classification. An outline of the classification will be found on page xv. This will also serve as a table of contents.

Biography is arranged as follows: (1) Works about biography, 920A; (2) Biographical dictionaries, 920D; (3) Collective biography, 920; (4) Individual biography, arranged by the subject of the biography, 92. Biographies of artists and musicians are classed with criticism of their works in the 700's; and see references are made under their names in class 92 to the class in which their biographies will be found. Lives of Christ are in class 232.

Books recommended for first purchase in small libraries are marked with a star; and those especially recommended are marked with a double star.

Books for which The H. W. Wilson Company has made sets of cards are indicated by the symbol (W). These may be ordered by author and title.

The directory of publishers will be found at the end of the Catalog.

INDEX

The index includes in one alphabet author, title, and subject entries for all books, and analytical entries for parts of books.

Analytical entries are introduced by the word In. These include:

1. Entries for many subjects not represented in the Catalog by entire books.
2. Many additional entries for subjects for which books are included.
3. Much biographical material about artists, historical personages, scientists, etc.

STANDARD CATALOG FOR PUBLIC LIBRARIES

1940 EDITION

AN ANNOTATED LIST OF 12,000 TITLES
WITH A FULL ANALYTICAL INDEX

THE H. W. WILSON COMPANY
NEW YORK—NINETEEN FORTY

Scope. The selection of books included has been made primarily for small and medium-sized libraries, but the list will be found useful in larger libraries, especially in suggesting good titles for first purchase. Since this Catalog is intended to be a practical list of books which the average public library of small or medium size will be able to afford and will find most useful, it has been necessary to omit scholarly and expensive works not suited to this class of libraries. A number of classics, now seldom used, are also omitted since their purchase would form a source of expense hardly justifiable. However, it is well to remember that even small libraries need some expensive books, if quality rather than quantity is to be emphasized. Additional titles which are desirable in large and scholarly libraries or in special libraries are given in notes, but it should be borne in mind that the selection is not made for the specialist.

The general policy has been to include books in the English language only. Of course libraries will wish to have a representation of foreign literatures in the original, measured to suit the local demand, but it is felt that the compilation of a list of that kind should form a separate undertaking. No attempt has been made to include a large number of the classics in translation. The editions listed are those which have been found most useful by librarians in work with the average public.

This Catalog is made primarily for American libraries, but it is hoped it may also prove useful in all English-speaking countries. The cooperation of English and Canadian librarians in many sections of the Catalog has made it possible to include some representative English titles, which, while perhaps better known to English readers, are of interest to American libraries.

Arrangement. The Catalog is arranged in accordance with the Dewey Decimal Classification with the classes in strictly numerical order. Individual biography, except lives of artists and musicians and lives of Christ, is in class 92 where the arrangement is by the subject of the biography. In this class see references have been made from the name of each artist or musician to the class where books about him will be found. Biographies of artists are classified with books on the art represented (e.g. Sargent, an American painter, in 759.1 with other books on American painting). Lives of musicians are in class 780.92. Lives of Christ will be found in class 232. All of this material may be found thru the index.

Form of Entry. In 1938 The H. W. Wilson Company began printing sets of catalog cards for all books that were likely to be selected for inclusion in the Standard Catalog for Public Libraries, the Standard Catalog for High School Libraries, and the Children's Catalog. Books for which these sets of cards are available are indicated by (W) immediately after the subject headings indicated for each book. The Library of Congress number is also given for use in ordering LC cards. In order to unify the entries in this Catalog and the Wilson cards, the following additional information is given for each book: dates for each author; paging for each book; "illus." and "maps" when required.

Classification and subject headings have been worked out in accordance with the D.C. numbers, length of numbers, and subjects given in the fourth edition of "Subject Headings for Small Libraries," edited by Minnie E. Sears. Thus, the cards issued by this company and the publications of the Standard Catalog Series are made uniform.

Books for First Purchase. About 2170 books recommended for first purchase, particularly in small libraries, are marked with stars. These stars, added with the advice of collaborators, are assigned by classes; that is, in each class an effort has been made to show by this means the one, or more, books in that class which should be purchased if only one or two are needed on the subject. In each class about one-fourth to one-fifth of the books are starred in this way.

About 1700 titles are marked with a single star. In addition to these, 470 titles or about one-fifth of all starred titles are marked with a double star. This indicates that the books so marked received particularly high votes.

It is possible, of course, that some libraries may not need to purchase all these starred titles, since some communities would not need books in all classes. In the 600 classes, for example, some libraries would not need even the starred title in highly specialized fields. Out of print books have not been starred because of the difficulty in securing them, but many of those retained received as high votes as those starred.

Titles in notes. About 2900 books are entered in smaller type without annotations, for several reasons: 1. Expensive books which libraries should know as recommended in the class; 2. Specialized books which have been suggested as recommended if a library needs them; 3. Out-of-print books which received good votes; 4. Additional books recommended for libraries needing more material, or more specialized material, than is offered by the books fully entered. In former editions of the Catalog, books which were not fully entered were usually noted under other books by the same author or under other books by different authors which resembled the noted titles in content or point of view. Because many libraries check their own holdings with this Catalog for the purpose of adding books to their collection or discarding books that may be out of date, it was suggested that notes would be more valuable if entered alphabetically at heads of classes. This form has therefore been very generally adhered to.

Analytical Index. A large number of analytics for parts of books have been included in the Author, Title, Subject and Analytical Index. This indexing will make available much material which it is usually not practicable to bring out in library catalogs because of the expense. In this index 3000 books or about 25% of the total number included have been analyzed wholly or in part. About 23,350 analytical entries are included. These entries cover many subjects represented in the Catalog by entire books (e.g. Furniture) as well as those for which whole books are not included (e.g. Dominican Republic). Usually analytical entries have been made only for material covering at least ten pages. Books have not been analyzed if the title or classification number indicates it is the obvious place to look for such material (e.g. histories of countries, travel books, etc.) Author and title analytics for collections of plays have been made unless the collection was included in "Index to plays" by Ina T. Firkins, 1927 edition and 1935 supplement. A line "Indexed in Firkins" is given in the entry in the classified part for each collection not analyzed in this index. Full contents of each collection has been added. Analyzing of literary essays except for biographical material in such classes as 814, 814.08, 824, 824.08, etc. has not been done to any extent for books which are included in the "Essay and general literature index" and supplements.

An attempt was made to include in the index all subjects indicated in the subject line of each entry in the classified part. In some cases this means a duplication of class number, but indicates that material on that subject will be found in the Catalog. Entries for many series have been added. As a rule title entries have been included in the Index unless they duplicated the subject entry. An advanced edition of the A.L.A. Filing Code has been followed. References to biographies of engineers, scientists, and representatives of many other vocations can be found under these subjcts in the Index. It is hoped that this feature will prove useful in providing material to illustrate the work of these callings. Books on careers have also been analyzed.

Uses. This Catalog will serve several purposes. (1) Use as a purchasing list, showing the best titles for small and medium sized public libraries to buy in the fields covered, and indicating by starred titles the books recommended for first purchase. To aid in this use full information is given about publishers, prices and editions. (2) Use as an aid in interlibrary loan. Since this Catalog furnishes lists of the good books on a given subject, a librarian unable to supply material can borrow from other libraries the most useful books in print. (3) Use as a reference and bibliographic tool for reference workers and readers' advisers. The full analytical index which brings out material not readily found elsewhere has been added with this end in view. The additional titles given in notes will also add to the reference value. (4) Use as an aid in library schools and training classes in teaching courses in book selection.

Prices. Editions. Publication Date. The prices given are those of 1939. In a number of cases where no American edition is available, books with English editions only are listed. In order to have the information as accurate as possible the information about prices, editions and out of print books published in the United States has been obtained in most cases directly from the publishers. Information about books published in 1939 and in 1940 has been obtained from the Cumulative Book Index. An effort has been made to include information about the latest editions and reprints. The English prices have been obtained mainly from the 1940 edition of the Reference Catalogue supplemented by the Cumulative Book Index, latest publishers' catalogs and correspondence with the English publishers. The date of publication given is usually the latest copyright date. The publisher listed is the one from whom the book is now obtainable.

The question of keeping English prices for American books was submitted to a number of librarians and the replies indicated that the usefulness of the English prices was not enough to warrant their being retained in this edition.

Out of Print Books. A number of out of print books from the previous edition have been retained because they are still useful and desirable from the library point of view. There is always the possibility that the more desirable ones may be reprinted if the demand is sufficient and of course it is often possible to buy second-hand copies of these books. An English edition is listed when obtainable if the American edition is out of print. In such cases a note has been added to show the American publisher who formerly carried this title. As price information was obtained from the publishers in 1939, all out of print books included have been marked "o.p. 1939."

Acknowledgments. Thanks are due the publishers who have generously given us copies of books included in the Catalog. Without these books at hand it would not have been possible to give proper annotations and the analytical entries in the Index. The publishers have also cooperated by furnishing information about prices and editions. Sincere thanks are given to the various members of the staff who assisted in the work, especially to Estelle Fidell who revised the cataloging and to Ethel Rafferty who secured the cooperation of the publishers. We are also indebted for the generous help given by the collaborators.

It is planned to continue the present policy of keeping the Catalog up to date by issuing annual supplements.

DIRECTIONS FOR USE

The arrangement is according to the Dewey Decimal Classification. An outline of the classification will be found on page xv. This will also serve as a table of contents.

Biography is arranged as follows: (1) Works about biography, 920A; (2) Biographical dictionaries, 920D; (3) Collective biography, 920; (4) Individual biography, arranged by the subject of the biography, 92. Biographies of artists and musicians are classed with criticism of their works in the 700's; and see references are made under their names in class 92 to the class in which their biographies will be found. Lives of Christ are in class 232.

Books recommended for first purchase in small libraries are marked with a star; and those especially recommended are marked with a double star.

Books for which The H. W. Wilson Company has made sets of cards are indicated by the symbol (W). These may be ordered by author and title.

The directory of publishers will be found at the end of the Catalog.

The index includes in one alphabet author, title, and subject entries for all books, and analytical entries for parts of books.

Analytical entries are introduced by the word In. These include:

1. Entries for many subjects not represented in the Catalog by entire books.
2. Many additional entries for subjects for which books are included.
3. Much biographical material about artists, historical personages, scientists, etc.

Pen names and personalities. Appleton-Century 1930 255p $2.50 014

1 Anonyms and pseudonyms 2 Authors 30-18269

"The author tells the story of many famous pen names and how they came to be adopted, with pleasant gossip about the personalities back of the names. There is a bibliography of books on pseudonyms and disguises, and an index of pen names." Cleveland

015 BIBLIOGRAPHY OF SPECIAL COUNTRIES

Other publications recommended for libraries needing them are:

English catalogue of books. Bowker 17s 6d Annual

List of the serial publications of foreign governments, 1815-1931; ed. by Winifred Gregory. Wilson, H.W. 1932 720p service basis Sponsored by the American library association, American council of learned societies and National research council

Publisher's weekly. Bowker $5 a year

Reference catalogue of current literature. Bowker $32.50 Biennial. Author and title index of books in print and on sale in the British empire

U.S. Library of Congress. Division of documents. Monthly check-list of state publications. Supt. of doc. $1.50 a year

Book review digest. Wilson, H.W. service basis 015

1 Bibliography—Periodicals 2 Book reviews (6-24490)

First published for the year 1905. Published monthly, except February and July, with cumulations in June and October, and an annual cumulation in February. Five year cumulative indexes have been issued since 1921

"A digest and index of selected book reviews in over 50 English and American periodicals, principally general in character. . . For each book entered gives author, title, place, publisher and price, a brief descriptive note, quotations from selected book reviews with exact reference to periodical in which review appeared, and references only, without quotation, to other reviews. Indicates length of review in number of words and whether favorable or unfavorable. From the public library point of view and primarily useful in the selection of books for such a library." Mudge

Cumulative book index; world list of books in the English language. . . Wilson, H.W. service basis 015

1 American literature — Bibliography 2 English literature — Bibliography 3 Great Britain—Bibliography 4 Publishers and publishing — Directories 5 U.S.—Bibliography 28-26655

Supplements the "United States catalog; books in print January 1, 1928" (Wilson, H.W. 1928 3164p service basis) Published monthly with annual and the following five year cumulations: 1928-1933, 1933-1937. It is recommended that libraries subscribe to the current numbers and buy the earlier annuals and cumulations when possible.

"Before 1930 included material published in the United States and also many Canadian publications. From 1930 on includes also books published in Great Britain, Australia, Canada, South Africa, and the British dominions and colonies generally." Mudge

Publishers' trade list annual. Bowker $3.50 015

1 American literature — Bibliography 2 Catalogs, Publishers' 3 English literature—Bibliography 4 U.S.—Bibliography (4-12648)

First published 1873. A large volume appearing annually made up of collection of publishers' catalogs arranged alphabetically and bound together with no general index. It lists only books in print and so is chiefly useful in ascertaining the current price and whether an individual title is still available. Some small libraries may get along without this by using the "United States catalog" and supplements and the price lists of individual publishers

United States. Superintendent of documents

* Monthly catalogue, United States public documents. Supt. of doc. $1.50 a year 015

1 U.S.—Government publications—Bibliography (4-18088)

First published 1895

A current list of practically all the publications of the government, giving the prices of all which are available for sale. A separate detailed index is issued annually. Serves as the current continuation of the large "Catalogue of public documents of Congress and of all departments of the government of the United States" (Supt. of doc. 1896-1937 v 1-22 various prices) These volumes are of especial interest to larger libraries. Known also as "Comprehensive index" or "Document catalog"

Price lists of government publications. Supt. of doc. gratis 015

1 U.S.—Government publications—Bibliography

About 45 lists of the publications which are for sale by the Superintendent of documents. Each one deals with a special subject (e.g. Birds, Fishes, Indians, etc.) giving the available books and pamphlets and prices at which obtainable. They are frequently revised

"Although this text and reference book is written primarily for persons carrying on research in the educational field, librarians in teachers colleges will find it useful in helping them see the problems of the students in education whom they serve. Every approach to library resources is made from the point of view of the person specializing in education. There are chapters, for example, on U. S. Office of Education and N. E. A. publications, professional literature of the educational field, statistics needed by educators, educational researches, etc. Besides the necessary information in regard to general tools, there are practical directions for attacking a problem, keeping a perspective amid the welter of material, making a bibliography, taking notes etc." N.Y. libraries

Code for classifiers; principles governing the consistent placing of books in a system of classification. 2d ed A.L.A. 1939 177p $2 025.4

1 Classification—Books 39-27926

"The book, in its first edition of 1928, was a revision and rearrangement of the 'Code for classifiers' issued in a mimeographed edition in 1914. . . As now issued in a new edition [this book] is much expanded. Sixty-five new sections, containing nearly 200 new rules, have been added; several definitions and rules have been rewritten; and classification procedure by the Library of Congress and by the editors of the Decimal classification has been recorded in cases of divergence by those systems from the procedure recommended in the rules." Foreword

"An attempt to furnish classifiers and students of classification with a guide to the 'principles governing the consistent placing of books in a system of classification'. . . The topics are arranged in the order of the Decimal classification, but the code may be applied to any system of classification." Book rev. digest

025.5 Reference work

Wyer, James Ingersoll, 1869-

Reference work; a textbook for students of library work and librarians. A.L.A. 1930 315p (Library curriculum studies) $2.50 025.5

1 Libraries—Reference department 2 Reference books 30-26045

"The chief aim of this book is to acquaint prospective librarians, particularly students in library schools, most of whom now are college graduates, with the materials, methods, organization and conduct of that part of modern library service which is known as Reference Work. . . While it is not planned as a cyclopedia of reference work, it should nevertheless not be without interest and value to librarians in all types and sizes of libraries." Foreword

1 Bibliography—Bibliography 2 Cataloging, Cooperative 3 Catalogs, Library—Bibliography 4 Interlibrary loans 31-26395

"This bibliography of printed sources which aid in the location of books in American libraries is prefaced by a survey of the history and present practice of the loaning of books by one library to another, and the methods by which books are located. The bibliography is arranged alphabetically by subject, with a full author and subject index." Book rev. digest

"Although this book claims to be only an essay on interlibrary loans, it is in reality a most admirable monograph on reference method or method of verification and research for the reference librarian. . . The book is meticulous in its detail, suggestive in its content." Library quarterly

Care and repair of books. Bowker 1931 127p $2 025.7

1 Bookbinding—Repairing 2 Books—Conservation and restoration 31-28065

"An excellent summary of aids in keeping books in good repair, from the time they are properly opened, collated and placed on the shelf. Book foes and how to combat them are discussed, also the care of paper and vellum, and of leather and cloth. The chapter of Repair and mending is clear and helpful. The list of additional books on similar subjects is a valuable feature of the work." Wis. bul.

In this volume Professor Joeckel "has undertaken to describe, analyze, and evaluate the position of the public library in the structure of government in the United States. He has dealt with the legal forms and types of governmental organization of the public library and with its relation to the city or other political unit to which it is attached or which it serves, and has considered the library primarily as a piece of governmental machinery and its efficiency as such, rather than the practical problems of its internal administration." Foreword

"The entire volume is most readable; the style, lucid. Frequent summaries and 'conclusions' aid the reader materially in keeping the continuity clearly in mind. The work is crammed with facts, thoroughly substantiated. Its opinions and recommendations are clear cut and well defended; stimulating, often challenging." Library quarterly

Who reads what? essays on the readers of Mark Twain, Hardy, Sandburg, Shaw, William James, the Greek classics; with an introduction by D. C. Fisher. Wilson, H.W. 1934 117p $1.25 028

1 Books and reading 2 Libraries and readers 35-224

Six essays setting forth the results of the author's survey and questions as to the type, class, or occupation of persons, who were readers of any one of a selected group of authors.

The replies to the author's questions "are presented in entertaining, readable style, with many little touches of humor; they reveal, moreover, a keen appreciation on his part of the qualities in his authors which appeal most strongly, and of the reaction to these qualities in the minds of the readers." 030 GENERAL ENCYCLOPEDIAS

No encyclopedias have been starred for first purchase since many factors will enter into a decision on this matter. For more complete histories of these encyclopedias consult Mudge's "Guide to reference works" and "Subscription books bulletin," October 1936 and October 1939

In addition to the encyclopedias entered in this class, three other encyclopedias which have been recommended are:

Doubleday's encyclopedia, ed. by A. E. Bostwick and others. Doubleday 1938 11v $69.50

Europa. Europa pub. 3v and 12 supplements a yr $52 A recommended reference book obtainable in loose leaf form. Write publisher for full list of prices and supplementary services. A 16 page supplement was published in 1938 recording major events from the publication of the main volume until March 31, 1938. This supplement is included in all volumes sold after it was issued

"This one volume encyclopedia is amazingly comprehensive with its 52,000 separate entries and 45,000 cross references. The articles are brief and simple in presentation even when on difficult scientific and erudite subjects. It is particularly rich in biographical articles. Useful for quick reference anywhere, and a specially handy volume in offices, the home, high school and small public libraries." N.Y. libraries

Encyclopedia Americana; a library of universal knowledge. Americana corp. 1939 30v illus light buckram $150, heavy library buckram $180 030

1 Encyclopedias and dictionaries

39-10411

A useful modern encyclopedia. The 1918-20 edition was thoroly revised and reset. Later printings especially that of 1931-32 show revisions and changes in plates. The 1939 issue is not an entirely new edition, but a partially revised reprint with corrections, additions, and some entirely rewritten articles. Of the 1939 edition the publisher states "A great quantity of new material was added in the 1936 and 1937 printings. The 1938 revision was more extensive, but the work done during [1939] involves more change and more new material than the three previous years combined." While the 1939 issue is greatly improved it is not an essential purchase for libraries having the issues of 1931-32 or later

The "Americana annual; an encyclopedia of current events" (Americana corp. $10) is a useful work which serves both as an annual supplement to the encyclopedia and as an annual record of events. First issued in 1923

Encyclopaedia britannica. 14th ed A new survey of universal knowledge. . . Encyclopaedia britannica 1939 24v illus $185 030

1 Encyclopedias and dictionaries 39-1138

Fourteenth edition was first issued 1929

"With this (the 1939) issue the publishers announce that they contemplate no new numbered edition of the encyclopedia. The set is revised to a certain extent with each reprinting. . . Room has been made for the new material by condensing older articles, shortening or deleting bibliographies, or, in a few cases, by inserting new lettered pages. . . Revisions since the 1936 issue seem to have been made largely in articles dealing with geographic areas. . . The index, v.24, has been revised with regard to the more important changes in text, maps and illustrations. . .

"Libraries which have earlier issues of the 14th edition of the Encyclopaedia Britannica, especially the issues of 1932 and later, will not need this latest one, although it is, of course, improved by such revisions as those indicated. The 1939 issue of the Encyclopaedia Britannica is recommended for libraries and individuals who wish to make a first purchase or to replace copies of earlier printings." Subscription books bulletin

The "Britannica book of the year" (Encyclopaedia britannica $10) brings the "Encyclopaedia britannica" up to date. Issued annually since 1937 replacing the "World today"

1 Encyclopedias and dictionaries

A well-edited, well-proportioned encyclopedia of good modern type unfortunately now not entirely up to date except for articles which have been brought to date in the 1930 supplement and the issue of Yearbooks. Strong features are its inclusion of small subjects in the main alphabet, numerous biographies and its many excellent bibliographies. The main work is the 2d edition 1914-16, reprinted with changes and revision in the 1922 issue, reissued with later dates. Libraries having either the 1914-16 edition or the 1922 issue of that edition need add only the 1930 supplement, and the Year books

"New international year book" (Funk $5.60, buckram $6.50) is compiled and arranged on the same plan as the "New international encyclopaedia" and is useful both as a supplement to that work, as an annual record of the progress and events in any subject and for biography

1 Indexes 2 Literature—Dictionaries, indexes, etc. 1-21913

Some 6000 books in the English language are covered in this work which indexes essays and similar collections of critical, biographical and other monographs; books of travel, history and other subjects where parts of the books justify analyzing; reports and publications of boards and associations dealing with sociological subjects, also publications of historical and literary societies; many miscellaneous books and some public documents. The indexing is by catchword subjects

1 Literature—Dictionaries, indexes, etc.

Continues from 1900 the " 'A.L.A.' index." The basic volume published 1934 covers the period 1900-1933. Kept up to date by semi-annual supplements, cumulating annually, with seven year permanent cumulations

"A detailed index, by authors, subjects and some titles, to essays and articles published 1900-[date] and also to earlier essays if included in collections published since 1900. Indexing is given with exact reference, i.e., inclusive paging; in the case of many essays first printed in periodicals the reference to the periodicals is given also, and variant titles for the same essay are indicated. . . A monumental work, useful in several departments of library service. In cataloging it provides a usable substitute for a large amount of analysis, the cost of which would be prohibitive in the average card catalog." Mudge

050 PERIODICALS

Two lists of periodicals which may be needed in larger libraries are:

Lyle, G. R. and Trumper, V. M. Classified list of periodicals for the college library. 2d ed rev and enl Faxon 1938 96p (Useful reference ser.) $1.25 Annotated list of 413 periodicals

Severance, H. O. Guide to the current periodicals and serials of the United States and Canada. 5th ed Wahr 1931 432p $3.75 Lists over 12,000 titles arranged alphabetically by title with a subject index

In addition to the periodical indexes listed below, the following are recommended for special or for larger libraries:

Agricultural index. Wilson, H.W. service basis Monthly. First published 1916. Annual and three year cumulations. Indexes over 125 periodicals with additional references to books, bulletins, reports, etc.

Annual magazine subject-index. Faxon $15 First published 1907. Indexes some periodicals not in the "Readers' guide." From 1909 to date includes the "Dramatic index" as pt. 2

International index to periodicals. Wilson, H.W. service basis First published 1907 as "Readers' guide supplement." Indexes over 200 periodicals devoted to pure science and the humanities. Issued 6 times a year with annual and larger period cumulations

Poole's index to periodical literature; abridged ed. . . by W. I. Fletcher and Mary Poole. Houghton 1901 843p o.p. 1939 An index to 37 periodicals for 1815-99. The unabridged edition of "Poole's index to periodical literature" covering 1802-1906 may be obtained from Smith, P. (6v in 7 $60). The "Nineteenth century readers' guide" in preparation by the H.W. Wilson co. will re-index by author as well as by subject many of the same periodicals. This new index will prove more useful than Poole since the latter does not index by author, but only by catchword or inverted title

First issue, January 1930. Published quarterly with annual and larger cumulations as follows: January 1929-September 1932; October 1932-September 1935; October 1935-September 1938

An author and subject index to about 130 periodicals, museum bulletins and annuals, in the fields of archeology, architecture, ceramics, decoration and ornament, graphic arts, industrial and applied design, landscape architecture, painting and sculpture. Includes material in foreign languages as well as in English

Education index. Wilson, H.W. service basis 050

1 Education—Bibliography 2 Education —Periodicals—Indexes (30-23807)

First published 1929. Author and subject index issued monthly with cumulations annually and at three year intervals. It indexes 128 leading educational periodicals, principally of the United States and Canada but also a few foreign ones. In addition it includes selective material on educational subjects from 17 other magazines. Useful in libraries which do work with schools, as well as in all special libraries for teachers and social workers

Published in cooperation with the Modern language association of America, with the assistance of a grant awarded by the American council of learned societies from a fund provided by the Carnegie corporation of New York

"Mr. Mott's first volume, which traces the history of American magazines from their beginnings to 1850, was brought out [1930] by The Century Company. . . The Harvard University Press has now taken over the first volume . . . and Mr. Mott is tirelessly at work on a continuation which will be volume four and may have to extend into volume five. . . Volume II (that is, the volume covering the material from 1850 to 1865) takes the reader through the troubled period extending from the Compromise of 1850 to the close of the Civil War. . . The third volume (from 1865 to 1885) is the history of what is in all probability the Golden Age of the American periodical." Boston Transcript

2 Periodicals—Directories (32-16320)

"From its inception in 1932, Miss Ulrich's standard work has grown from 323 pages (6,000 entries) to 465 pages (10,200 entries) Under each of the 145 subject headings are gathered in alphabetical order the periodicals devoted to a particular field, with full title, sponsor, frequency of publication, price, and name of publisher, with a list of journals in which the contents are either indexed or abstracted. In each field there is a sub-class denoting published bibliographical sources. The index, comprising 64 pages, is now more complete, comprehensive, and convenient to use, through the incorporation of titles, subjects, and cross-references into one straight alphabet. The list of abstracting and indexing services, to which reference is made in the text, has been increased from 15 to 30. 1 Journalism 2 Newspapers 32-24683

Since the 1923 edition, much of the book has been rewritten, the treatment of news gathering and news writing has been amplified and much new illustrative material has been substituted. Enlarged by 80 pages

"Deals in detail with the treatment of a 'story' in a newspaper office after it has been gleaned by a reporter, citing and analyzing much illustrative material. Does not cover editorial writing, or musical and dramatic criticism, but is . . . [a] practical treatise and is written from large experience both in newspaper writing and the teaching of journalism." Cleveland

"The methods used in this textbook in news writing have proved their usefulness in several years' experience in the training of students at the School of Journalism, Columbia University. The emphasis thruout is placed upon reader-interest as the basis of successful writing and upon the analysis of reader's tastes, needs, preferences, and understanding." Book rev. digest

"The author has succeeded in storing a vast amount of intelligently organized information between the covers of his book. . . Much of the illustrative matter has been drawn from such periodicals as the New Yorker, Vanity Fair, the Writer, and several New York metropolitan newspapers. . . . The author . . . has the newsman's point of view. His own style is both readable and informative." Boston Transcript

First published 1923 by Houghton and still available from them in the Riverside library series at $1. The Modern lib. edition has a new foreword and was reset with smaller margins

"Originality of thought, a lucid style and mellowness of atmosphere mark this exposition of the author's philosophy concerning life as an art. From the study of dancing as a 'primary and essential art,' the theme is expanded through a consideration of the arts of thinking, writing, religion and morals. At once illuminating and readable." N.Y. state lib.

"The story of the development of man's mind and of his efforts to understand the universe, and to reconcile his developing knowledge with his old religion. Readable and stimulating." Wis. bul.

"This book . . . tries to present some of the spade work which is required before anyone can begin to plant the seeds of a philosophy. It suggests in a fragmentary way the effect of science upon those beliefs the holding of which makes life worth living for each of us. It is not therefore exactly a history of science but a history of the human imagination as science has affected it and allowed it to grow." Preface

Ways of knowing; or, The methods of philosophy. Macmillan 1925 427p (Library of philosophy) $5 121

1 Knowledge, Theory of 25-23437

"The aim of Professor Montague's book is to disentangle the problems of logic and methodology from the problems of metaphysics, with which they are generally connected, and to show that by introducing certain modifications into the conflicting theories of knowledge it is possible to reconcile idealism and realism. Part I deals with logic. . . Part II [discusses] the three positive methods of epistemology." Hibbert jour.

H. O. Taylor's "Fact; the romance of mind" (Macmillan 1932 166p $1.50) is another interesting study which illustrates the various ways in which men perceive and construct facts

128 The soul

Soul comes back. Macmillan 1929 207p illus $2 128

1 Personality 2 Soul 29-7516

"In the first part of the book, The stairway of the soul, Professor Coffin pictures the soul as it looks to the materialist, the idealist, the fundamentalist, the modernist. In the second half, A soul for John Doe, he follows the career of John Doe's soul to its culmination in the reality which we call personality." Book rev. digest

"The temper of the book is admirable and fits it to be put into the hands of thoughtful people, young and old, who are confused in their thinking. The great merit of the book is that it presents in simple and arresting language some of the chief principles needed to refute the current idea that it is meritorious and scientific to deny purpose, values, ideals and religious experiences." "Discusses helpfully and in non-technical chapters the importance of the proper mental hygiene in different ages and relationships—childhood, adolescence, marriage; school, college, business; religion, literature, and social work." Pittsburgh

"Of the many problems which arise in the lives of all, there is scarcely one that is not discussed sanely and helpfully. The great value of the book from the standpoint of the reviewer, apart from its soundness, is that it is understandable, and one does not have to be versed in the language of the alienist to profit by it. The reviews of the book by specialists have been favorable from the professional standpoint. In view of these and his own experience with it, it is recommended to the average reader with confidence. The printing and make-up are excellent." American journal of public health

"In this revision I have had in mind, first, the new things that have been learned in the field of psychiatry and the related fields of psychology and sociology since the first edition (1930); second, the changing attitude of the medical profession in the direction of greater appreciation of the validity of psychological data." Preface to the second edition

"The author has aimed to produce an opportune, sound, and well-balanced survey of the entire field of mental hygiene and he has admirably succeeded. The result is an absorbing book, which is easy to read, profusely illustrated with illuminating examples of the cases cited, and one well calculated to appeal both to the casual reader and to the person who would have a more serious purpose." "A well-known American psychologist has for years been collecting episodes from history and from modern times, illustrating mankind's tendency to shape a belief or a faith out of his own desires—for attention, for revenge, for assurance—and then to hold to that belief in spite of its incredibility. These episodes include tales of witchcraft and miracle workings, the story of Kaspar Hauser, the history of Mme Blavatsky, animal magnetism, ouija, and many other phenomena. In this book the author retells the stories and explains their psychological backgrounds. Index." Book rev. digest

"Published in 1894, the result of twelve years' investigation, 'Man and Woman' has been translated into many languages and passed through many editions. The present volume has been more thoroughly revised than its predecessors and represents the mature and perhaps final judgment of Havelock Ellis as a man of seventy upon the patient research of his earlier years, the cornerstone of facts upon which so much of his later writings were based. This book is essentially a collection of facts concerned with the differences between men and women, and contains (now as at its first publication) the most comprehensive systematic analysis of human secondary sexual characteristics assembled in a single volume." A comprehensive survey of the field of adolescent psychology intended for use as a college textbook. Chapters are included on factors in social adjustment, effects of social conflict, influences of the family, delinquency, etc. Includes bibliographies
"This volume will be a stimulating one to the advanced college student. Written for three reasons—as 'a teaching aid,' for the information and guidance of individuals confronted with difficult problems in adolescent behavior, and with the hope of stimulating research, the first of its goals is most nearly attained." "It is in the nature of a mosaic, all its brighter and valuable fragments having been borrowed, though it sadly needs a pattern and has no particular design. . . Nevertheless, the work has its value, and provides delightful reading. It is always charming to read forgotten bits from Dickens and Thackeray, or Jane Austen, Wordsworth, Byron, Shelley, De Quincey, Browning, and all the other great and near-great. The specimens are almost exclusively from the English and American literatures." Boston

First published in 1929. "Material for clarifying the various topics, for filling in gaps, and for making the subject matter more concrete has been provided for the present edition by a study of twenty-five hundred children in the Psychological clinic which has been conducted for children by the author at Northwestern university since 1925." Bkl.
"Primarily for teachers of normal pupils, and taking an encouraging view of possibility of directing development of personality. Deals with the individual's struggle with reality and his ability to make social adjustments. Every individual either meets issues squarely or compromises through forgetting, ignoring, or distorting reality. Discussion of compromise types through a wealth of concrete cases. Indicates how mental deviations arise, how they may be recognized, and measures to prevent the individual from becoming extremely unsocial. Vocabulary carefully simple." Youngstown

First published 1918. In the second edition the changes consists of the omission or compression "of some topics, greatly enlarges that of others, and adds four chapters, in consequence. As before, it is intended for a textbook, not for reference reading. . . The 'practical exercises' appearing at the ends of the chapters consist of directions for observations, field work, simple investigations. . . A course in general psychology is presupposed. . . The main emphasis is not, however, on theoretical discussions of development but on principles of guidance for the children with whom the teacher must deal." Preface to the second edition

A group of essays dealing with problems of child training. Some of the titles are: Gifted children; Manners; The odd child; Childish pilfering; The awkward age; Shall you punish your child? The Fourth of July; Every day is father's day

"Angelo Patri's manner of writing of childhood and its problems is a singularly happy one for those innumerable parents, and even teachers, who have neither the time nor the training to study psychology exhaustively. He has, apparently, a natural sympathy with the mind of the young and a lucid way of making the interested parent see his or her child more clearly." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

First edition 1930. The authors have revised and rearranged the material to bring it up to date with the most recent knowledge of the subject. The arrangement is logical and convenient for teaching and is recommended to nurses, teachers, and others engaged in work with the preschool child.

"One of the most comprehensive and well balanced books on growth and development of the young child it has been our pleasure to read. This book is unique in beginning with an exposition of the philosophy of family life which is fundamental to an understanding of the child in its modern relationships. . . The subject matter is arranged in such a way as to give a sense of proportion to the whole. Helpful references are found at the end of each chapter and a selected bibliography of 165 titles adds to the value of the volume." American journal of public health

"Mr. Seabury is well equipped to explain why we are 'so queer,' the nature and causes of those queernesses and what we should do to cure ourselves of them. . . He is so thoroughly steeped in academic psychology that he writes about it with ease and skill without using more than the merest touch here and there of its scientific terminology. And he has had also years of practical experience as a consulting psychologist." N.Y. Times

David Seabury's "See yourself as others see you" (McGraw 1939 354p $2.50) (W) and "Why we love and hate" (McGraw 1939 440p $2.75) (W) are analyses of temperamental distinctions with questions for self-evaluation

1 Idealism 2 Philosophy, American 3 Royce, Josiah, 1855-1916 32-31170

"Written by twelve eminent university professors, and setting forth in many-sided fashion the philosophy of idealism, it boldly announces that realism has been tried and found wanting, and that idealism will once again take its rightful place of prominence in the convictions of our leading thinkers." World tomorrow

"This book is recommended to those who think that the history of philosophical idealism is ended in America and to those who wish to see how a group of distinguished academic philosophers believe still (and offer arguments to support their belief) that experience itself, much more so morals and metaphysics, are impossible without assuming to begin with a universe whose being is reason." Hocking, William Ernest, 1873-
Types of philosophy. rev ed Scribner 1939 520p $2.80 140

1 Metaphysics 2 Philosophy 39-31936

First published 1929. The changes in the 1939 edition are made because of "marked changes in the temper and position of philosophical discussion [and] even more marked changes in the philosophical interest of the public." Preface to revised edition
"A professor of philosophy at Harvard University, who is somewhat of a mystic, states the case for his belief that the study of philosophy is for all. He suggests a method of attack and then proceeds to discuss the various types: naturalism, scepticism, pragmatism, dualism, mysticism, etc." Providence

Meaning of truth: a sequel to "Pragmatism." Longmans 1909 xxi,297p $2 140

1 Reality 2 Truth 9-27102

"The pivotal part of Mr James's 'Pragmatism,' as he states in the preface to the present work, is its treatment of the meaning of truth. This account having occasioned lively discussion, he has endeavored to amplify his thought on the subject and to that end has here collected all his writings which bear directly upon it." Pittsburgh

William James's "Essays in radical empiricism" (Longmans 1912 282p $2) is another collection of studies which were published chiefly in the Journal of philosophy

* Pragmatism, a new name for some old ways of thinking; popular lectures on philosophy. Longmans 1907 308p $2 140

1 Pragmatism 7-20643

"Teaches that truth comprises all principles, ideas, and beliefs that lead in the long run to the best practical results. Pragmatism is the same method in philosophy that utilitarianism is in ethics, which pronounces monogamy right and gambling wrong, not by previous intuition, but by the test of experience. What wears best is good; and, because proved good, is true." Outlook
"His presentation of the pragmatic method is of course unique by reason of the author's own charming literary style, comprehensive knowledge of philosophy, literature and philosophy, literature and philosophical principles, and great skill as an expositor." Educ. rev.

McDougall, William, 1871-1938
Modern materialism and emergent evolution. Van Nostrand 1929 249p $2.75 140

1 Evolution 2 Materialism 29-14453

"In the course of these lectures Professor McDougall controverts the theory of mechanistic causation—to which the modern materialism of the title refers—and defends the theory of teleological causation, seeking to prove that 'mental activity is an effective agency in the determination of the course of natural events, a designing and creative agency, capable in some degree of shaping the course of things in accordance with its desires, its purposes, its ideals.'" Book rev. digest
"The argument is conducted with that neatness and clarity which we expect from Professor McDougall. Not the least valuable part is the very full appendix of notes in which contrasting theories are explained and answered." Spectator

1 Psychology 39-12411

A revision and rearrangement of the authors' "Psychology; a factual textbook." There are new chapters on social functions of the individual, individual differences, motivation, personality, response, perception, and sensation

"The previous edition proved itself a satisfactory text-book. It was up to date, accurate and eclectic. In its new form, with additional matter and an increased number of collaborators, it appears to have sacrificed none of these merits. It should prove to be as satisfactory as its predecessor. Whether the new order of presentation is the better can only be told by trial." Nature

"A genuine interest in the other fellow and a recognition of his need for a sense of personal importance are two of the factors stressed in this practical guide for pleasing people in business or in society. Examples are cited of the successes or failures of famous people in their daily contacts with others. Frankly a popular, inspirational book. Author conducts courses in effective speaking and applied psychology." Bkl.

Dashiell, John Frederick, 1888-
Fundamentals of general psychology. Houghton 1937 xxiii,655p illus $3 150
1 Behaviorism (Psychology) 2 Psychology, Physiological 37-12676
"This book had a predecessor ['Fundamentals of objective psychology' published 1928]. It would be well to state briefly the relation of the two books. Much of the old book is present verbatim in the new one, but so is much else. The earlier book had 18 chapters totalling 571 pages and 37 lines; the present book has 22 chapters totalling 640 pages of 40 lines. The greatest difference, however, is in scope and point of view. The new book is not only bigger, but better and broader." American journal of psychology

* Psychology; briefer course. Holt 1892 478p illus $2.90 150

1 Psychology 24-30671

An abridgment of the author's great work, the "Principles of psychology." It condenses all of the material and omits several whole chapters and all polemical, historical, metaphysical and speculative passages. Brief chapters on the various senses have been added. The "Principles of psychology"(Holt 1890 2v $8) is an important work of wide influence, which all larger libraries will find indispensable

"Perhaps no one has better expressed in his writings the full scope and tendency of modern psychology than the late William James. . . Better than any other book, his great work on the 'Principles of Psychology' can be taken as at once a summing up of the older psychology and an introduction to the modern point of view." R. S. Psychology and the day's work; a study in the application of psychology to daily life. Scribner 1918 338p illus $2.50 150

1 Psychology, Applied 18-16976

"An excellent account of some of the problems of 'Applied Psychology' . . . The author has succeeded in avoiding the technical jargon which psychologists sometimes use to give an appearance to being scientific. It is a very human book. The author lays stress upon behavior, upon habits of adjustment to the realities and tasks of living, hence upon habits of work, thinking and acting." E. D. Martin

Watson, John Broadus, 1878-
Behaviorism. rev ed Norton 1930 308p illus $3 150

1 Behaviorism (Psychology) 30-26990

A popular treatment by the leading exponent of this school of psychology. In the revised edition much of the text has been rewritten and about 100 pages of new material has been added. The author says that in general "the point of view has not been fundamentally altered"

1 Mental tests 2 Psychology, Applied 28-24836

"In a series of interviews with well-known psychologists Mr Wiggam asked each to explain his particular field of experiment and research concerning the mind. These talks as Mr Wiggam reports them, are simple, direct, and easy to understand. Several of them discuss the methods used by the originator to measure the mind of adults and of children. Among the eleven psychologists interviewed are Professor Thorndike; Dr David Mitchell; Professor Lewis Terman." Book rev. digest

Woodworth, Robert Sessions, 1869-
Contemporary schools of psychology. Ronald 1931 232p illus (Psychology ser.) $2.50 150

1 Psychology 31-10187

"The present book seeks to provide an objective view of contemporary psychology so far as concerns the schools and their illuminating views of humanity. . . Its aim is . . . to present an impartial picture of the schools, so that the reader can see the essential features of each one free from confusing detail though with enough concreteness to lend color to the picture." Preface

Contents: Background of our current disputes; Introspective psychology and the existential school; Behaviorism; Gestalt psychology or configurationism; Psychoanalysis and related schools; Purposivism or Hormic psychology; Middle of the road

Comparative psychology; by E. L. Thorndike [and others]. Prentice-Hall 1934 529p illus (Psychology ser.) $3.50 151.3

1 Psychology, Comparative 34-24471

A symposium by twelve professors of this subject. The book was organized and planned by the group but each individual wrote independently and no effort was made "to curb or to eliminate diverse opinions on controversial subjects; such opinions are omnipresent in rapidly changing subjects, and no student is any the worse for encountering them in his reading at the very outset." F. A. Moss, Editor of series, in Preface

Contents: Why study animal psychology? by E. L. Thorndike; Historical background, by R. H. Waters; Maturation and "instinctive" functions, by C. P. Stone; Motivation: incentives and drives, by C. P. Stone; Effect of drugs and internal secretions on animal behavior, by F. A. Moss; Functions of the receptors, by D. M. Purdy; Discrimination, by P. E. Fields; Neurology of learning, by S. I. Franz; Conditioned reflex, by H. S. Liddell; Learning, by W. T. Heron; Complex learning processes, by W. T. Heron; Theories of learning, by E. C. Tolman; Individual differences, by R. C. Tryon; Social psychology of animals, by O. L. Tinklepaugh; "Gifted" animals, by O. L. Tinklepaugh

153 Thought and thinking

Dewey, John, 1859-
* How we think; a restatement of the relation of reflective thinking to the educative process. Heath 1933 301p $2 153

1 Educational psychology 2 Thought and thinking 33-27208

"The new edition of How We Think (published in 1910) is, as its subtitle indicates, a 'restatement' of How We Think. In the first place, although some material found in the original edition has been excised, there has been considerable expansion. The present book contains nearly a quarter more than did the older account. In the second place, the revision has been made with a view to increased definiteness and clearness of statement. Scrupulous pains have been taken to restate all ideas that were found by teachers to give undue trouble in understanding." Preface

"A serviceable introduction to the general subject. It covers an analysis of the thinking process and the training of thinking on the basis of natural aptitudes. It reflects educational wisdom." Joseph Jastrow

Dimnet, Ernest, 1866-
* Art of thinking. Simon & Schuster 1928 216p 98c 153

1 Thought and thinking 28-25828

"A distinguished book written by a distinguished author for the encouragement of people without distinction. Its purpose is to convince men and women who are neither morons nor geniuses that they can nevertheless have a vigorous and interesting mental life of their own, a life that is more than the mere parroting of current shibboleths, which has become the popular substitute for thought." Christian century

"As an assistance to the art of thinking, M. Dimnet gives much advice which would be extremely useful to anyone on the point of practising this art. If M. Dimnet does not seem to go to the root of the problem why everybody does not practice this art, he is more likely to be useful to those who are about to practice it." Times (London) lit. sup.

Jastrow, Joseph, 1863-
Effective thinking. Simon & Schuster 1931 271p o.p. 1939 153

1 Thought and thinking 31-8702

"An informal account of the process of thinking by a noted American psychologist. Part one deals with the technique of thinking and the fundamentals of logic; part two, with the impediments to clear thinking, such as superstition, prejudice and prepossession; part three, with the constructive phases by which right thinking is guided and encouraged. Bibliography." Book rev. digest

Thouless, Robert Henry, 1894-
How to think straight; the technique of applying logic instead of emotion. Simon & Schuster 1939 246p $2 153

1 Thought and thinking (W)

First published 1932 under the title "Straight and crooked thinking," entered in the main catalog. The 1939 edition has been revised and rewritten with examples drawn from modern life

Contents: Emotional meanings; All and some; Some dishonest tricks in argument; Some logical fallacies; Tricks of suggestion; Habits of thought; Tabloid thinking; Pitfalls in analogy; On drawing the line; Vagueness and related evils; Prejudice; Need for straight thinking

"An entertaining presentation of the influence of prejudice or passion, or a tabloid mind, on our thinking, with illustrations taken from current controversial questions. Contains 'thirty-four dishonest tricks which are commonly used in argument.' " Pittsburgh

153.8 Unconsciousness

Jung, Carl Gustav, 1875-

Mind at mischief; tricks and deceptions of the subconscious and how to cope with them; introduction by R. H. Gault and Meyer Solomon. Funk 1929 400p $4 153.8

1 Psychoanalysis 2 Psychology, Pathological 3 Subconsciousness 29-20311

"Popular, scientifically correct, constructive discussion of the 'tricks of the subconscious' as exhibited in complexes, hysteria and other forms of abnormal psychology. The author . . . draws upon 20 years' experience in describing methods employed in dealing with sufferers from various personality disturbances." N.Y. libraries

157 Emotions

Bergson, Henri Louis, 1859-
Laughter; an essay on the meaning of the comic; authorised tr. by Cloudesley Brereton and Fred Rothwell. Macmillan 1911 200p $2 157

1 Comedy 2 Laughter 11-28319

"An essay on the meaning of the comic which originally appeared in a series of three articles in the Revue de Paris. It is an analysis and an explanation of the comic including incidental discussions as, for instance, that of the theory of art. The three divisions of the monograph are: Chapter 1, The comic in general, The comic element in forms and movements, Expansive force of the comic; Chapter 2, The comic element in situations and the comic element in words; Chapter 3, The comic in character." Book rev. digest

A. M. Ludovici's "Secret of laughter" (Viking 1933 134p $1.75) is a summary of what philosophers and writers have said about laughter and the psychological factors by which it is controlled

Goodenough, Florence Laura, 1886-
Anger in young children. Univ. of Minn. 1931 278p illus (Inst. of child welfare. Monograph ser.) $2.50 157

1 Anger 2 Child study 3 Children—Management 32-26093

"A valuable addition to our scanty concrete information regarding the causes and characteristics of anger outbursts in little children and also significant for its development of a method of investigation in a difficult field. Not too technical for the use of college students and parents, though of unquestioned value to more advanced workers." Journal of home economics
Bibliography: p250-72

Lund, Frederick Hansen, 1894-
Emotions of men. McGraw 1930 348p (Whittlesey house publications) $2.50 157

1 Emotions 30-32175

"Man, says the author, is guided by his emotions. His reason is used only in determining the best means of attaining his ends. This is a direct and informal treatment of all this, to show in what measure desires arise from an emotional and instinctive source. To the same source is traced life's meaning and value, its color and intensity, its worth and significance." Providence

King, Basil, 1859-1928
Conquest of fear. Garden City pub. co. 270p (Star ser.) $1 157

1 Fear 31-8501

Reprint of a book published 1922 by Doubleday, Page

The record of what one individual did to conquer fear. His solution, worked out when he was ill and threatened by blindness, is that he sees "no fundamental conquest of fear that is not based in God"

MacMurray, John, 1891-
Reason and emotion. Appleton-Century 1936 278p $2 157

1 Emotions 2 Reason 3 Religion 36-5678

Reprinted 1937 with an index
"Collection of lectures referring, directly and indirectly, to the function of the emotions in human life. Professor MacMurray's general principles are adapted, in the concluding lectures, to problems of education, sex and religion." Book rev. digest

"With reference to sex, the chief emphasis is upon 'emotional sincerity'. . . [This] is actually the only foundation of real morality. In the discussion of religion the striking position is defended that the scientific spirit is 'the one creative achievement of the Reformation'. . . Religion is 'what a man makes of his personal relationships' and the field of personal relationships is the center of life. And since the 'personal' is not essentially temporal, in the way that organic life is temporal, the ground is cleared for belief in immortality." Religious bk. club bul.

Oliver, John Rathbone, 1872-
Fear; the autobiography of James Edwards. Macmillan 1927 366p $1 157
1 Fear 27-4616
Also available in the Modern reader's series, new style (Macmillan $1)
"The imaginary biography of a business man whose fear of failing health has brought him to the verge of insanity is made the vehicle of much sound and stimulating advice for the cure of mind and body through mental analysis and control." Pratt quarterly

Walsh, William Sebastian, 1890-
Mastery of fear. Dutton 1924 315p $2 157
1 Fear 24-12129
"The various common fears, such as fear of illness, ridicule, heredity and old age, are analyzed in this popular and nontechnical exposition of the subject. In each instance, common sense methods of alleviation or cure are indicated." N.Y. state lib.

Human nature and conduct; an introduction to social psychology. Holt 1922 336p $2.50 158
1 Habit 2 Social psychology 22-4249
Also available from Modern lib. for 95c
"Deals with the place of habit, impulse and intelligence in conduct, and with general considerations regarding morality, freedom, the community and religion. Expanded from three lectures delivered at Leland Stanford University, 1918." N.Y. state lib.
"Might easily be regarded as a well-knit series of essays rather than a philosophical treatise. Will be enjoyed because of its inspirational tone and graceful style." Literary rev.

Dunlap, Knight, 1875-
Habits: their making and unmaking. Liveright 1932 326p $3 158
1 Habit 2 Learning, Psychology of 32-35032
"Findings in regard to the interrelations of the processes of learning and unlearning, of habit making and habit breaking. The last four chapters deal with the practical application of his theories in breaking up specific bad habits, such as stammering, tics, etc. Bibliography. Index." Book rev. digest
"Dr. Dunlap is not afraid of a little heresy nor does he hesitate to strike out boldly along lines of interpretation which may be useful to distraught men and women. . . Few books on psychology are so consistently readable, and few are so concerned with topics in which the layman knows himself to be vitally interested." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

Hocking, William Ernest, 1873-
Human nature and its remaking. new and rev ed Yale univ. press 1923 xxvi, 496p $4 158

1 Self-culture 2 Will 9-29208
Contains practical suggestions for the cultivation of self-control and strength of will
"We are convinced that students and intellectual workers generally will find here much very useful information. I have heard many young people complain of the absence of a method in arriving at self-mastery. I am offering them the results of nearly four years of study and meditation on the subject." Preface to first edition

Shaffer, Laurance Frederic, 1903-
Psychology of adjustment; an objective approach to mental hygiene. Houghton 1936 600p illus $3 159

In addition to the books entered in this class, the following title is recommended: Chapman, F. M. and Henle, Paul. Fundamentals of logic. Scribner 1933 384p $2 An elementary text

Cohen, Morris Raphael, 1880- and Nagel, Ernest, 1901-
* Introduction to logic and scientific method. Harcourt 1934 467p $3.50 160
1 Logic 2 Methodology 34-2513
"The first part of the volume is an exposition of formal logic. . . In the second part, they discuss the application of logic to inquiries in the field of natural science as well as in that of morals and aesthetics." Boston
"This book has more than a textbook value; no other work for beginners with which the reviewer is acquainted contains so much that is new, definite, relevant, and true." Journal of philosophy
Contains bibliographies

Creighton, James Edwin, 1861-1924
Introductory logic. 5th ed thoroughly rev with the addition of new problems and examples, by Harold Smart Macmillan 1932 496p illus $2.25 160

1 Logic 32-13438

A standard textbook first published in 1898. This introductory course in logic grew out of the author's lectures at Cornell university. In the 5th edition Professor Smart has made changes necessitated by recent developments in the field of logic and has somewhat simplified the work in certain sections

Dewey, John, 1859-
* Logic; the theory of inquiry. Holt 1938 546p $4 160

1 Logic 2 Thought and thinking (W) 38-27918

"This book is a development of ideas regarding the nature of logical theory that were first presented . . . in 'Studies in logical theory'; that were somewhat expanded in 'Essays in experimental logic' and were briefly summarized with special reference to education in 'How we think.'" Preface

"While it is not a popular book, it is not as a whole a difficult book to read, and only a few of the chapters demand technical training." Sat. rev. of lit.

Eaton, Ralph Monroe, d 1932
General logic; an introductory survey. Scribner 1931 630p illus $3 160

1 Logic 31-6616

"This text-book presupposes no knowledge of logic on the part of the reader. It is written with the elementary, but intelligent, student in mind. I have striven to cover the whole subject simply and clearly." Preface

"Not an elementary handbook, but a comprehensive examination of the science of logic, with many criticisms of principles enunciated by various authorities and commentators. The inherent difficulty of the subject is considerably mitigated by the author's clean-cut thought and spirited expression." Springfield Republican

Holmes, Roger Wellington
Rhyme of reason; an invitation to accurate and mature thinking. Appleton-Century 1939 516p illus $3.75 160

1 Logic 39-12950

Also available in a student's edition in the Century philosophy series (Appleton-Century $3)

"Introduction to logic which stimulates interest in the thinking process and shows the fun of thinking accurately. The author devotes some space to the history of scientific method, and to philosophy, and offers problems to illustrate logical thinking." Bkl.

A logic bibliography: p505-08

Jevons, William Stanley, 1835-1882
* Elementary lessons in logic; deductive and inductive. Macmillan 340p illus $1.25 160

1 Logic [9-34172]

First published 1870 and frequently reprinted

"Continues, notwithstanding numerous additions to the literature of logic, [one of] the most useful books for beginners. Peculiarly free from the illustrations by which the science has often been degraded to a sort of systematic intellectual trifling." Pittsburgh

W. S. Jevons's "Logic" (Am. bk. 64c) first published 1876, is even simpler and clearer for the beginner. Some libraries may find the smaller volume sufficient for their needs

Mace, Cecil Alec
Principles of logic; an introductory survey. Longmans 1933 388p illus $4.50 160

1 Logic 34-1566

"An excellent introductory survey of the more or less settled as well as unsettled problems of logic. . . Mr. Mace has performed a valuable service in bringing together, briefly, systematically, and often with important additions of his own, the contemporary English efforts to improve on Mill. . . An unusual feature of the book is a good sketch of Yule's theory of attributes in connection with the application of the logic of classes to statistics." Journal of philosophy

Bibliographical notes at end of each chapter

Stebbing, Lizzie Susan
Logic in practice. Methuen 1934 113p (Methuen's monographs on philosophy and psychology) 2s 6d 160

1 Logic 35-690

"This very able little book goes a long way to prove that logic is a human science, and not merely a more or less coherent collection of dry and irrelevant dogmas. The grounds of our beliefs, the purpose of thinking, the importance of form and the fundamental principles of deduction and induction are analysed and explained in a way that should make their understanding easy and interesting." Nature

"The number and character of [the author's] illustrations, drawn from the contemporary social scene, should make nonsense of the frequent reproach that formal logic is only an idle game." Journal of philosophy

Revised edition of a classic textbook of which the first edition was published in 1908. "The basic plan remains the same; perspective and setting have changed. About two-thirds of the present edition has been newly written, and frequent changes in detail will be found in the remainder." Preface

"The discussion of the ethical problems of the economic life is especially timely and enlightening. There is no laying-down of of the law, no confusion of the moral problems with questions of technique, but, instead of this, a clear and concrete statement of the principal moral problems presented by contemporary industry. I know of no more carefully considered, balanced introduction to this vital subject." International jour. ethics

The author of several earlier books of inspirational advice, here presents as his thesis that success may be had by being 'kind to oneself'—by refusing to get excited over trifles, by guarding one's health, by overcoming fear of the future, etc. Illustrated with anecdotes from his own experience and from the experience of others who have consulted him

"To be sure, the idea that a man in full control of his faculties, one who subdues irritability, anger and greediness, is better equipped to make his own way successfully, is nothing new. But there is freshness in this presentation, and more than a little goodnatured humor in his pithy observations." Springfield Republican

Published in England under title: Relevance of Christianity

Lectures given at Union theological seminary having as their aim to "help to reestablish the Christian religion at the heart of men's daily tasks and interests and recover its lost leadership in national life." Preface

"The plan is an ambitious one, demanding considerable philosophical acumen, a wide theological background and a sympathetic insight into the lives of those on whom the big moral problems press with urgency. Few modern teachers have these qualifications so admirably combined and balanced as the vicar of the University Church at Oxford, and the highest compliment that can be paid to him is to state that the book achieves a success commensurate with the ambition of its scope." 1 Ethics 30-8851

A scholarly study of the progress of ethical theory in the systems of Spinoza, Butler, Hume, Kant and Sidgwick. The treatment is philosophical rather than historical

"Dr. Broad has many of the more important merits of a fine philosophical writer. He ingratiates himself at once by his unpretentiousness and remarkable lucidity. He is a rigorous and acute logician, quick to smell and pounce upon a fallacy or an ambiguity." Nation

1 Ethics 2 Philosophy and religion 37-5080

First published 1929 by Macmillan in a more expensive edition

"The first part of the book is an eloquent and moving analysis of the confusion and disillusion of the modern age. The rest of the book is an attempt to find a way out of this chaos, thru the acceptance of a higher humanism and a way of life inspired by the ideal of 'disinterestedness' in all things." Book rev. digest

"One of the finest qualities of the 'Preface to Morals' is a certain strain of literary self-conquest, wholly in keeping with the author's idea of asceticism, which saves the book from falling into the slough of cleverness, and gives it a lean literary vigor and sincerity. . . This is a sound and valuable book; honest, unafraid, and austere." Yale review

"In this stimulating discussion of the Christian ideal of love, the author explains clearly and fearlessly his ethical position and his ideals. Lectures delivered at Colgate-Rochester divinity school, 1934." Bkl.

"As a summons to religionists to examine themselves on why human affairs are carried on at such incalculable human cost, this book has all the passion and relevance of a prophet's message. As a protest against easygoing naturalisms that are content with prudential calculations on social relationships, it sets out the imperative of an authentic Christian conscience." Christian century

"Genuinely helpful diagnoses of the causes of unhappiness, together with a common sense consideration of the possibilities of happiness and practical 'ways of escaping from psychological sources of misery.' Based on the author's own experience and observation." N.Y. libraries

"Beautifully planned and written; it is neither more nor less than a guide to the fuller enjoyment of life. The author knows just what he wants to say, and says it brilliantly; the rest—the cloudland of mysticism and the dubious terrain of physical health—remains unseen. The worth of a guide is in its omissions as much as in its contents." Spectator

"This book was written for ordinarily well people, not for those who are extraordinarily sick in body or mind. It does not claim to heal troubles which it cannot heal. . . It is a guide to the art of ordinary living, for the use of fairly normal people in the common course of everyday existence." Author

"This book, like others of its kind, offers some definitely good advice, and will perhaps direct its readers toward painless, or nearly painless self-discipline. "A solid, scholarly work, which evaluates the influence of religion and particularly of Christianity on the moral conduct of man. The ethical standards of the church in successive periods and behavior of Christians in the face of varying conditions are considered, along with the teachings of Jesus and ethical theories from primitive times. A vast amount of documental data has been brought together to trace Christian attitudes towards human life, towards economic aspects of society, slavery, truth, sex, marriage, divorce, irregular sexual relations, and towards consideration for lower animals. The conclusion is that Christianity has impeded rather than supported moral development." Bkl.

"A minor masterpiece. It is so, I believe, for two reasons. In the first place, it is an ideal book for the student who is beginning his acquaintance with political philosophy and wants to be clearly aware of the central problems involved. From this angle, it is the work of a remarkable teacher—luminous, incisive, penetrating. On the other hand, it is also a contribution of real importance to its subject." H. J. "A survey in condensed form, of the seven volumes of the same author's 'Studies in the Psychology of Sex'. . . The chapters of Mr Ellis's new book are 'The Biology of Sex,' 'The Sexual Impulse in Youth,' 'Sexual Deviation and the Erotic Symbolisms,' 'Homosexuality,' 'Marriage,' 'The Art of Love' and 'The Dynamic Nature of the Sexual Impulse.' Mr Ellis insists that he is not excessively preoccupied with the pathology of sex. However, he argues that the borderline between the normal and the abnormal cannot be distinctly drawn. Compared with his larger work, this condensed version omits much detail that can hardly be understood if separated from the point of view of abnormal psychology." Springfield-Republican

1 Friendship 33-5173

"A noble conception of the art of friendship is contained in this essay by a French litterateur. He reflects upon the foundations and the modes of friendship, compares love and friendship, and discusses the possibility of friendship between a man and a woman." Book rev. digest

"In its mode, which is French and exquisite, the book is excellent, though to some tastes it will seem too French and too exquisite. It contains wisdom expressed meticulously, which to some will seem a collection of platitudes. It is the wisdom of a perfectly-ordered French life, so perfectly ordered that one might call it precious." Sat. rev. of lit.

Powys, John Cowper, 1872-
Philosophy of solitude. Simon & Schuster 1933 232p $2 177

1 Happiness 2 Self 3 Solitude 33-4365

The author has written this book for dwellers in our American cities to help them to develop a philosophy of solitude thru which they may create for themselves "a continuity of secret happiness, in defiance of the world"

"'A Philosophy of Solitude,' delicate, poetic, distinguished, offers no solution of the world's problems; but it points out a path for the individual self, a path which followed can but lead to ever-increasing repose. . . Mr. Powys is to be welcomed to that gracious company of those who, from Lao-tze, who composed the Tao Teh King five centuries before Epictetus and seven centuries before Marcus Aurelius, down to Emerson and Thoreau, have taught that individualism is right and proper in the world." 1 Man 2 Toleration (W) 38-3124

"The papers for this book have grown out of Mrs. Taylor's experience as counselor of a discussion group of high school boys and girls meeting Sunday evenings in the Park Church in Elmira, New York. . . Drawing her examples from those fields in which man has already achieved some measure of brotherhood, she points out how in the realms of science, art, and literature, the great minds of various races have served all mankind; how discoveries in the fields of exploration, chemistry, agriculture, medicine and mechanics have enriched not one particular race but the whole world; and how in art and music men have found a common language that moves and unites them all." Toward liquor control; with a foreword by J. D. Rockefeller, jr. Harper 1933 220p $2 178

1 Liquor laws 2 Liquor problem 33-32035

"The survey conducted under the direction of Messrs. Fosdick and Scott, represented a wide gathering of facts and opinions and a study of liquor control systems in Canada and on the continent of Europe. A summary of these systems is given in the appendix. . . The report dismisses the idea of federal control of liquor traffic and urges that enlightened control legislation be enacted by individual states." Springfield Republican

"This book presents an interesting mélange. Side by side with a realistic appreciation of conditions is to be found a naive disregard of factors essential to the control of the traffic in intoxicants in this country. The book has, however, a twofold interest. On the one hand it exhibits an interesting documentation of the current state of the public mind. On the other hand there arises a consideration of the adequacy of the means which we are urged to adopt toward liquor control." Sat. rev. of lit.

"Gilson's purpose in bald terms is to validate the philosophy of Thomas Aquinas, the official philosopher of Catholicism, as a genuine synthesis of faith and reason, of Augustinian and Aristotelian thought. He seeks to prove not only that Aquinas successfully joined the thought of Augustine and that of Aristotle but that he accomplished this without doing violence to either. In the process of proving this point Gilson defines the Christian view of life as an essential monism which is opposed to the dualism of mind and matter, of form and content, of soul and body, to which Platonic idealism tends." * Introduction to living philosophy; a general introduction to contemporary types and problems. Crowell 1932 381p illus $3 190

1 Philosophy, Modern 32-6182

"A simple, readable account of modern philosophical thought, embracing idealism, realism, pragmatism and other minor forms. Designed for the intelligent non-specialist." Wis. bul.

"Dr. Robinson's preference for Idealism is combined with a firm grip of the dual truths of the insufficiency of philosophies and the high destiny of philosophy, and he is sedulously fair to those with whom he is not particularly in sympathy." Times (London) lit. sup.

Rogers, Arthur Kenyon, 1868-
English and American philosophy since 1800, a critical survey. Macmillan 1922 468p $3.50 190

1 Philosophy, American 2 Philosophy, English 22-9955

"His survey of English and American philosophy, in all its meanderings, has all the clearness and distinction that could be asked of a critical study. The author's opinions are never obstrusive, and although 'more empirical than the empiricists' his attitude even towards the rationalists is intensely judicial." Spectator

Royce, Josiah, 1855-1916
* Spirit of modern philosophy; an essay in the form of lectures. Houghton 1892 519p $4 190

1 Philosophy, Modern 4-4007

"His most readable book, containing a brilliant survey of modern philosophy, and an exposition of his own idealism." Trinity college list.

"From the variety and amplitude of his studies in metaphysics and mathematics, in psychology and religion, he is peculiarly qualified to interpret 'the spirit of modern philosophy.' That spirit may be summed up in one word,—romanticism." Woodbridge Riley

1 Locke, John, 1632-1704 2 Philosophy, Modern 33-24472

"All five of the essays in this book are rich in quality and intensity of thought. Three of them—that on Locke, that on Bradley and British idealism, and that on M. Julien Benda—will make their chief appeal to those well-read in philosophy; but the remaining two are of equal interest to the general reader." New stateman and Nation

Contents: Locke and the frontiers of common sense; Fifty years of British idealism; Revolutions in science; Long way round to Nirvana. Prestige of the infinite

Winds of doctrine; studies in contemporary opinion. Scribner 1913 215p $2.50 190

1 Knowledge, Theory of 2 Science—Philosophy 3 Thought and thinking 29-23500

"This is a completer and better-rounded statement of the author's point of view than any which has preceded it, and on some points it is a clearer one. . . It begins, one feels, where the author himself begins; the directing intent is laid down in the opening pages; and it moves forward with uninterrupted sweep to that which, one is persuaded, constitutes the personal goal of his thinking." Journal of philosophy

"Apart from the technical merits of the theory propounded, the book deserves great praise for its penetrating analysis of the present state of philosophical thought, and clear presentation of the problems with which what Professor Dewey calls the traditional philosophies are beset." C. E. M. Joad in Spectator

John Dewey has written two other books which give more of his philosophy: "Experience and nature" (Open ct. 1925 443p o.p. 1939) and "Philosophy and civilization" (Putnam 1931 334p $5)

Life of reason; or, The phases of human progress. Scribner 1905 5v ea $2.25 191

1 Philosophy 5-5419

The second edition 1922 is a reprint with a new preface. Contents: Reason in common sense; Reason in society; Reason in religion; Reason in art; Reason in science

"His chief work, The Life of Reason . . . is an insistence on the need for a rationalization of experience, in terms solely of the natural life, while yet recognizing the central place in life of value, or the ideal." A. K. Rogers

Philosophy; selections. . . ed. with an introductory essay by Irwin Edman. Scribner 1936 lvi,587p $2.50 191

36-24974

The editor "has endeavored to select from the more than twenty volumes which make up the author's work those passages that are most likely to convey a coherent and comprehensive idea of Mr. Santayana's 'system.'" N.Y. Times

"Mr. Edman has succeeded in the introductory essay in giving a very complete if flattering exposition of Santayana's thought. With the selections the reviewer would not quarrel though he would add one or two pieces, particularly the more mordant passages from 'Egotism in German Philosophy' and the defense of himself in 'Soliloquies.'" Nation

Scepticism and animal faith; introduction to a system of philosophy. Scribner 1923 314p $3.50 191

1 Belief and doubt 2 Skepticism 23-10671

"The book has all Mr. Santayana's well-known merits: beauty of style, a truly philosophic temper, a wide survey of history and thought. It is full of sayings that are profound, delightful, or amusing. And it has the great merit of not pretending, by bad arguments to establish doctrines which we accept on instinct, but cannot hope to prove." Bertrand Russell in New stateman

Santayana's philosophy is further expounded in the series called "Realms of being," consisting of "Realm of essence" (Scribner 1927 183p $3.50) "Realm of matter" (Scribner 1930 209p $3.50) "Realm of truth." (Scribner 1938 142p $2.75) and "Realm of spirit" (Scribner 1940 302p $3)

Horizon of experience; a philosophy for the modern reader. Norton 1934 372p $2.75 192

1 Art—Philosophy 2 Experience 34-5076

"It is argued in this book that the 'modern' attitude towards the world is mainly a sense that on the horizon of our present experience are new forms of truth and beauty : . . that the fine arts and the 'artistic' elements in science, morality and religion, reveal aspects of the real world which have been too often neglected in philosophies based mainly upon the physical sciences." Preface

"Mr. Burns's book has a style conducive to the stimulation of serious thought. It is lucid and fluent and in the main keeps outside the terminology of technical philosophy." Springfield Republican

193 GERMAN PHILOSOPHERS

Brock, Werner, 1901-
Introduction to contemporary German philosophy. Macmillan 1935 143p $2 193
1 Philosophy, German [36-8858]

"This brief and unassuming little book is . . . for the English-reading student who seeks an introduction to the new and most distinctive phases of German philosophy since 1900. The best sections are those on Max Weber on 'the importance of Nietzsche and Kierkegaard for contemporary German philosophy,' on Jaspers and on Heidegger, but the work of many other individuals, if less fully discussed, is illuminated by being placed in significant relations. The excellence of the book is due to the fact that Dr. Brock is qualified not only to tell us accurately about these thinkers, but also to give us a thoroughly authentic and exceptionally undistorted impression of their meaning to German intellectuals." Journal of philosophy

1 Faith 2 Man A13-1159

Originally published in 1800
"Fichte's most popular presentation of his idealistic philosophy. Incidentally it throws light on the contemporary systems of Kant and Hegel, and perhaps even on the pragmatism of our own time." Chicago

Haeckel, Ernst Heinrich Philipp August, 1834-1919
Riddle of the universe at the close of the nineteenth century; tr. by Joseph McCabe. Harper 1900 390p o.p. 1939 193
1 Evolution 2 Monism 3 Religion and science 0-6403

The famous zoologist undertook to organize the latest results and hypotheses of natural science into a system of Monism. The second work specifically devoted to this purpose was his vigorous and dogmatic "Riddle of the universe." The Monism of Haeckel combines spiritualistic and materialistic ideas in a way that is not altogether clear. But Haeckel's significance does not consist in his logical consistency, but in the tremendous enthusiasm aroused by his ideas, and in the fanciful vividness of his expositions. Adapted from Harald Høffding's Brief hist. of modern philosophy

Immanuel Kant's Critique of pure reason; tr. by N. K. Smith. Macmillan 1929 681p $8.50 193

1 Causation 2 Knowledge, Theory of 3 Reason 31-1002

"In 1871, he published his 'Critique of Pure Reason,' nearly, if not quite, the most important philosophical treatise ever written. The essential doctrine of this book is the thought that man's nature is the real creator of man's world." Josiah Royce

Where the "Selections" listed below are not sufficient for the needs of the library, this is the first volume of Kant to buy. It is a recent translation from the second German edition (1787). An important translation by Max Müller (Macmillan 2v $5.50) was first published in 1881

Two other works which are of importance to larger and special libraries are:

Kant, Immanuel. Critique of judgment; tr. by J. H. Bernard. Macmillan 1892 xlviii, 429p $4.25

Kant, Immanuel. Critique of practical reason and other works on the theory of ethics; tr. by T. K. Abbott. Longmans lxiv,368p 12s 6d

Selections; ed. by T. M. Greene. Scribner 1929 lxxi,526p (Modern student's lib.) $1.25 193

30-3332

Selections from "The critique of pure reason" translated by Max Müller; "The fundamental principles of the metaphysic of morals" and "The critique of practical reason" translated by T. K. Abbott under the title of Kant's "Theory of ethics"; and the "Critique of judgment," translated by J. H. Bernard. There is a long, readable introduction by the editor

* Selections; ed. by D. W. H. Parker. Scribner 1928 xxxii,447p (Modern student's lib.) $1.25 193

28-12566

The greater part of this edition is devoted to selections from "The world as will and idea." There are also chapters from "On the will in nature" on Comparative anatomy and Physical astronomy, and essays from "Parerga and Paralipomena" with titles On education and On women. A biographical and critical essay by the editor prefaces the work

Schopenhauer "offers us an empirical metaphysics, and because he stands on the ground of experience he is the first to call that which 'constitutes the basis of being and its substance' by its right name: Will. That is what constitutes his originality, his merit, the secret of his success in contemporary Germany." Alfred Weber

Spinoza, Benedictus de, 1632-1677

* Philosophy of Spinoza, selected from his chief works; with an introduction by Joseph Ratner. Modern lib. 1927 lxx, 376p 95c 193

27-6162

This edition contains selections from Elwes's translation of the "Tractatus theologico-politicus," "Political treatise" and "Improvement of the understanding," and from White's translation of the "Ethics." These excerpts are grouped under subjects: On God, On man, and On man's well-being. The appendix gives the sources of the selections from the "Ethics." Introductory material includes a short biography and a critical essay. The "Ethics" is available in Everyman's library edition from Dutton at 90c

"Spinoza, perhaps more than any other great philosopher, directed all his work to a single unvarying aim. The question of how man shall live to realize his best potentialities is never far from any problem on which he embarks. . . [He] did not trouble to treat metaphysical, mechanical, methodological problems separately, but only as they are the necessary preparation to ethics." R. P. McKeon

Benrubi, Isaak, 1876-

Contemporary thought of France; tr. by E. B. Dicker. Williams & Norgate 1926 213p (Library of contemporary thought) 5s 194

1 Philosophers, French 2 Philosophy, French [26-27541]

"Traces the development of French philosophical teaching along three main lines: empiric positivism, critico-epistemological idealism, and metaphysico-spiritual positivism. Deals also with the contemporary thought of French speaking Switzerland." Pittsburgh

"Dr. Benrubi performs with considerable success the difficult task of compressing into a little over 200 pages the essentials of the doctrine of over eighty modern French philosophers, though a certain obscurity, due to elliptical treatment, could hardly be avoided." Times (London) lit. sup.

Bergson, Henri Louis, 1859-

Matter and memory; authorized tr. by N. M. Paul, and W. S. Palmer. Macmillan 1911 xx,339p (Library of philosophy) $4 194

1 Mind and body A11-576

"This book affirms the reality of spirit and the reality of matter, and tries to determine the relation of the one to the other by the study of a definite example, that of memory." Introduction

"Though it can hardly be claimed that Bergson has completely solved the extraordinary complex and difficult problem of memory and least of all the mystery of matter, it may be admitted ungrudgingly that he has clarified the obscurities of the former problem to a considerable extent, and has, above all, rendered great service by the masterly way in which he points out the insuperable difficulties of the materialistic position." Quest

H. L. Bergson's "Mind-energy" translated by H. W. Carr (Macmillan 1920 262p 7s 6d) is a compilation of lectures and essays which are not so difficult to understand as the author's other works

Two sources of morality and religion; tr. by R. A. Audra and Cloudesley Brereton, with the assistance of W. H. Carter. Holt 1935 308p $3 194

1 Ethics 2 Mysticism 3 Religion—Philosophy 35-5957

"A rich and suggestive philosophical discussion of the nature and origin of morality and religion, under the following headings: Moral obligation; Static religion; Dynamic religion; Mechanics and mysticism. The admirable translation was made with the collaboration of [the author]. Index." N.Y. libraries

"This book is too deep in essential wisdom, too wise with suggestions that seem to touch the subsoil of experience out of which philosophy grows, to be quarreled with on the grounds of a point here or even of a total scheme. It is so rich with historical, poetical and human illustration, so packed with repeated psychological subtleties and dreaming precisions, that to miss it is to miss, as Bergson says of the prophets and the Christian mystics, one of the voices of Life itself." Descartes, René, 1596-1650

27-14024

Descartes has been called the father of modern philosophy. This volume contains selections from: the Discourse on method; the Rules for the direction of the mind; the Meditations; the Objections against the Meditations, with the author's replies; the Principles of philosophy; the World, or Essay on light; the Treatise on Man; the Automatism of brutes; and the Passions of the soul. The introduction is a biographical and critical essay on Descartes

1 Japan—Civilization 2 Philosophy, Chinese 3 Philosophy, Japanese 27-16903

"In writing this book Mr. Tsuchida's purpose was to give to Western readers an idea of what educated Japanese and Chinese are thinking, and to present, through his criticism of this thought, his own views. . . Mr. Tsuchida devotes only two of his twelve chapters to Chinese thought, but he brings out, in that limited space, the fundamental differences in the thought of the two countries." Boston Transcript

"Dr. Tsuchida has not room to treat these questions at all fully, nor does he give much indication of the quality of the suprisingly numerous thinkers whom he mentions. But the ground he opens up is entirely new to Western readers, and even his rather hurried indications are extremely welcome." Times (London) lit. sup.

Religion. Holt 1929 324p $3 201

1 Religion 29-6025

"A good discussion of religion from the standpoint of philosophy, clearly expressed and in harmony with modern trends of thought." Chicago

"The layman will understand what the author is talking about, and will find himself relaxing from the muscle tensions which a theologian always seems capable of inducing in him. That the book was written for him is apparent from its almost total lack of footnote apparatus and from its easy-reading type . . . No one can gainsay the clarity, charm, and cogency with which it is written." Journal of religion

1 Christianity 2 Religious thought 39-27017

"In a series of lectures delivered at Vanderbilt University in 1938, the author took as his topic some of the great spiritual quests by which mankind has been advanced. The literature in which such quests have found expression, from the Hebrew prophets to Huxley's 'Ends and means', is drawn on, and the book offers much suggestive thought for serious readers." Aubrey, Edwin Ewart
* Religion and the next generation. Harper 1931 188p illus $2 201

1 Psychology, Religious 31-6900

"The author is concerned with the problem of what basic religious ideas should be taught to children. The conflict between traditionalism and modernism as experienced by the modern parent is fully discussed, and methods for building up a positive faith are offered. Should be welcomed by parents facing the question." Wis. bul.

"Concise and forceful [the author] faces difficulties frankly, convinced of the potency of the certitudes he has to offer . . . His approach is that of modern psychology rather than that of traditional apologetics." Christian century

Baillie, John, 1886-
Interpretation of religion; an introductory study of theological principles. Scribner 1928 477p $4 201

1 Religion 2 Religion—Philosophy 28-30166

"Surveying the whole field of the history of theology Mr. Baillie attempts a fresh evaluation of the nature of religion. While he may have added no new insight to the vexing problem of religion he has done more than give us a mere historical survey of conflicting theologies . . . Mr. Baillie has made the best defense of the Kantian position in our generation." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

"It may seem to some that Professor Baillie concedes too much to the anthropologists and allows too little to the distinction between origin and validity when he owns to the return of misgivings as to the ethical import of investigations into primitive cults; but this . . . is unessential and detracts not at all from the value of his sincere and distinguished work." "A notable contribution to the philosophy of religion. They are comparable with William James's 'Varieties of Religious Experience' in that both series of lectures treat of topics absolutely fundamental to religion and yet capable of appreciation by almost anyone to whom religion means anything at all." "An arresting protest against nontheistic humanism, in which Dr. Brown tests religious belief of authority, by intuition, by reasoning and by experiment, and finds a certainty which is of more value to the human spirit than is the certainty of physical science." Cleveland

"The book is really valuable within its limits, constructive and sympathetic. Dr. Brown writes with calm reasonableness and sympathy, giving us a book that we all can read with pleasure and profit. If only more Liberals manifested the same competence and temper!" Living church

1 God 2 Religion—Philosophy 12-14946
An important contribution to the philosophical study of religion, which some readers may find rather hard reading
"To 'find the foundations of religion, whether within reason or beyond,' is [the author's] stated aim. The pragmatic question, What does religion do? is taken as the first step leading to the study of what religion is. Part 1, Religion as seen in its effects, considers this question, and is followed by part 2, Religious feeling and religious theory; part 3, The need of God; part 4, How men know God; part 5, Worship and the mystics; part 6, The fruits of religion." "The central interest is in showing how the harmonious development of personality can be promoted and disintegrating inner conflicts be healed . . . Part one deals with factors that menace mental health; part two, with the ways in which Christian faith promotes mental health. The first section is a discerning diagnosis of the psychological problems which any pastor meets daily in the lives of the people whom he serves. The second section is a constructive presentation of the skillful pastor's role in helping them to solve their problems." Religious bk. club bul.

* Meaning and truth of religion. Scribner 1933 468p $3 201

1 Religion—Philosophy 33-8768

"This finely composed and beautifully written book is a vindication of religion in our time. True to its title, it interprets the meaning of religion in terms of the best contemporary thought; and then undertakes to prove its truth or soundness as rooted in the very heart of life. Fundamentally orthodox in its reaffirmation of the historic postulates of God and the soul, free will and immortality, the book is radical in its analysis of the religious principle itself . . . Professor Lyman conducts his inquiry with an utterly free spirit, an easy mastery of his material and a firm conviction of faith as based on what he finds to be knowledge of our time." Books (N.Y. "A Catholic Book Club selection [which] is a collection of essays and addresses that have already appeared or been delivered elsewhere . . . Those who are acquainted with Dawson's other works will eagerly welcome the volume, while new readers may profitably begin with this many-sided expression of his genius." Commonweal

Dewey, John, 1859-
* A common faith. Yale univ. press 1934 87p (Terry lectures) $1.50 204
1 Religion 34-27264
"A constructive statement . . . concerning the factors that constitute the religious life . . . It sums up and unifies the hitherto inarticulate gropings of many thoughtful people of our day—those who no longer hold to the religion taught by the churches but who nevertheless have a growing desire to share in the betterment of human society and want an ideal more tangible and more powerful than that of agnostic humanism . . . God is found for Dewey in 'active relation between the ideal and the actual.'" Religious bk. club. bul.

Fosdick, Harry Emerson, 1878-
* Adventurous religion and other essays. Harper 1926 326p $2 204

Inge, William Ralph, 1860-
Outspoken essays: first-second series. Longmans 1919-22 2v ea $2 204

"Opinions on subjects of primary importance, held by a man who cares nothing for public or private censure, but who states his convictions with courage." Saturday rev.
Contents: v 1: Our present discontents; Patriotism; Birth-rate; Future of the English race; Bishop Gore and the Church of England; Roman Catholic modernism; Cardinal Newman; St Paul; Institutionalism and mysticism; Indictment against Christianity; Survival and immortality. v2: 'Confessio fidei'; The state, visible and invisible; Idea of progress; Victorian age; White man and his rivals; Dilemma of civilisation; Eugenics

Jacks, Lawrence Pearsall, 1860-
Religious perplexities. . . Harper 1923 92p (Hibbert lectures, 1922) $1 204

1 Religion—Addresses, essays, lectures
[23-7244]

Contents: Source of perplexity; Religious perplexity in general; Perplexity in the Christian religion
"The perplexities with which these lectures deal are religious, not ecclesiastical; primary, not secondary; and faced, not evaded: the book appeals to the lay mind. It deals, in fact, with some of the central problems of religion in general and Christianity in particular; and it will come as a relief to those who, while dissatisfied with the thinness of modern theology, are consciously or unconsciously, seekers after God." Spectator

L. P. Jacks's "Living universe" (Harper 1924 111p $1) is another recommended series of lectures

More, Paul Elmer, 1864-1937
Catholic faith. Princeton univ. press 1931 312p $4 204

1 Christianity 2 Religion—Addresses, essays, lectures
31-33421

"Since Rome will not do and Protestantism is hopeless, there remains only Anglo-Catholicism, and in the smooth waters of that form of faith Mr. More seems to have dropped anchor and come to rest." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)
Contents: Buddhism and Christianity; The creeds; Eucharistic sacrament; The church; Christian mysticism

Hart; Religion in a revolutionary society, by L. I. Newman; Future of religion, by J. H. Holmes; Future of religion, by A. Johnson
The chapters of this book, which were first presented in 1932 as lectures at the New School for Social Research, are written by men representing the Jewish, Catholic, and Protestant faiths. A bibliography is appended and there is a name as well as a full subject index

Tittle, Ernest Fremont, 1885-
We need religion. Holt 1931 156p $1.50 204

1 Christianity 2 Religion—Addresses, essays, lectures
31-30334

Six chapters of this book were originally delivered as the Wilkin lectures of 1931, at the University of Illinois
Contents: Need of religion; Religion we need; Religion and health; Religion and happiness; Religion and life eternal; Religion and the energies of men; Christianity and the motives of men; Religion and armaments; Mighty meek; What is spirituality?
"When he discussed 'The Religion We Need,' which is really the second theme of this book, he pointed away from the obscurantism, and the ethical blindness and impotence of so much of our traditional religion, to a 'high religion' not only philosophically respectable and in harmony with the facts of science, but able to make its social and ethical resources available to the solution of the problems of contemporary civilization." Paul Burt in Introduction

Whitehead, Alfred North, 1861-
* Religion in the making. . . Macmillan 1926 160p (Lowell lectures, 1926) $1.75 204

1 Religion—Addresses, essays, lectures
26-15643

Contents: Religion in history; Religion and dogma; Body and spirit; Truth and criticism
"This small book consists of four lectures, but the matter of them might well have taken up four volumes. Professor Whitehead is one of the most valuable writers we have on philosophic matters, but he provides exclusively strong meat for grown men. He must be taken slowly and digested at leisure . . . The whole book is weighty almost over-weighty, with pregnant ideas." Times (London) lit. sup.

1 Immanence of God 2 Knowledge, Theory of 3 Natural theology 4 Religion—Philosophy 5 Transcendentalism 35-10000
Gifford lectures delivered in the University of Glasgow 1932-1933 and 1933-1934
"An exploration of the fundamental problems of religion, definitely addressed to those who believe in Marxian determinism. An effort to rebut the contention that man is an automaton, and that an economic explanation of history is sufficient. 'A contribution of very great importance to the literature of philosophical theology'." Coventry

211 THEISM. FREE THOUGHT

Bury, John Bagnell, 1861-1927
* History of freedom and thought. Holt 1913 256p (Home univ. lib. of modern knowledge) $1.25, student's ed $1 211
1 Free thought 2 Rationalism 13-20846
"A clear and comprehensive review of the growth of freedom of thought from ancient Greece and Rome to the present, showing considerable bitterness against the theological obscurantism which has in the author's opinion held human thought in prison." Cleveland
Bibliography: p253

Horton, Walter Marshall, 1895-
Theism and the modern mood; with an introduction by W. A. Brown. Harper 1930 189p $2 211
1 God 2 Humanism—20th century 30-8490
"A brave attempt to come to a critical understanding of humanism, to dethrone it, and to set in its place a workable and reasonable theism. The work is not ponderous, but brief, timely and admirably executed. It cannot but prove reassuring to those who have witnessed the armies of theism falling back before the advancing hosts of humanism. And it may serve to bring back God to many who have surrendered to the logic of the humanists, for it is this very logic which the author attacks most vigorously." Christian century

Lecky, William Edward Hartpole, 1838-1903
History of the rise and influence of the spirit of rationalism in Europe. rev ed Appleton 1914 2v o.p. 1939 211
1 Rationalism 15-5668
A scholarly work first published in 1865
"The fundamental thesis is that the pressure of the general intellectual influences of the time determines the predispositions which ultimatly regulate the details of belief." Guide to hist. lit.

Paine, Thomas, 1737-1809
Age of reason; being an investigation of true fabulous theology; ed. by M. D. Conway. Putnam 1896 208p $2 211
4-1971
First published in complete form in 1795
"Paine's confession of faith is simple. He was an ardent Deist believing in a God who created the world, and who is known to mankind through the world which he created. Nature was Paine's Bible, and science its only interpreter . . . Paine's language was not shaped for conciliation. He spoke with the brutal freedom of a reformer . . . He wrote in clear, strong English which the people could understand; and he wrote as one of them." E. Sedgwick

Potter, Charles Francis, 1885-
Humanism, a new religion. Simon & Schuster 1930 132p $1.50 211
1 Humanism—20th century 30-11928
"An exposition, for the layman, of humanism as a religion, based on a belief in 'the supreme value and self-perfectibility of human personality' and opposed to the supernatural elements of orthodox Christianity." Bkl.

212 THEOSOPHY

Mrs. A. W. Besant's "Ancient wisdom, an outline of theosophical teachings" (Theosophical press 1897 338p illus $1.50) is a recommended book if needed

Blavatsky, Helene Petrovna (Hahn-Hahn) 1831-1891

Key to theosophy. . . rev and ed by Katherine Tingley Theosophy co. 310p illus $2 212

1 Theosophy 15-21954

First published in 1889; reprinted 1930 in facsimile reproduticon

"'The Key to Theosophy,' written in question and answer form, presents philosophical ideas in clear, concise terms comprehensible to the average mind. It contains an excellent history of the Neo-Platonic Movement of the third century, gives a philosophical concept of God, and fully analyzes the complex structure of nature and man. The conditions of life after death and the question of Reincarnation are presented for consideration, while various ethical problems are discussed from the scientific point of view." L. C. Grugan in Wilson bul.

215 RELIGION AND SCIENCE

Books on evolution, some of which will supply material on religion and science, will be found in class 575

In addition to the books listed in this class, the following are recommended:

Barnes, E. W. bp. of Birmingham. Scientific theory and religion; the world described by science and its spiritual interpretation. Macmillan 1933 xxiv, 685p illus (Gifford lectures at Aberdeen, 1927-1929) $4

Streeter, B. H. Reality; a new correlation of science and religion. Macmillan 1926 350p $2.50

Streeter, B. H. and others. Adventure; the faith of science and the science of faith, by B. H. Streeter, C. M. Chilcott, John Macmurray, A. S. Russell. Macmillan 1928 247p $2

Burtt, Edwin Arthur, 1892-

Religion in an age of science. Stokes 1929 153p (Religion and the modern age ser.) o.p. 1939 215

1 Religion and science 2 Science—Philosophy 29-10527

"A discussion of the religious trends of the present which strives to be direct and to show where the present attitude leads." Providence

"His book has one exceeding great value, above all its other values; it makes unmistakably clear that the reconciliation of science and religion is no easy matter . . . Here is a clear account of one philosopher's prescription for an ailing religion to make it alive and well in a scientific age." Sat. rev. of lit.

Eddington, Sir Arthur Stanley, 1882-

* Science and the unseen world. Macmillan 1929 91p (Swarthmore lecture, 1929) $1.50 215

1 Friends, Society of 2 Religion and science 29-19461

"A lecture delivered in London at the yearly meeting of the Society of Friends (Quakers) for 1929. The author . . . does not believe that the revelations of science are the last and only word. He holds that both a scientific and a mystical outlook are involved in the problems of experience. Short, easily read, and will meet the needs of many questioning readers." Wis. bul.

Huxley, Julian Sorell, 1887-

Religion without revelation. Harper 1927 392p (What I believe ser.) o.p. 1939 215

1 Religion and science 27-24378

"His object is to sketch the fundamentals of a new attitude to the universe, one which, broad based upon the teaching of science, will be capable of infinite modification to embrace the discoveries of the future. It is this attitude or reaction to the universe as a whole which he calls religion." Spectator

Bibliography: p383-84

Inge, William Ralph, 1860-

God and the astronomers; containing the Warburton lectures, 1931-1933. Longmans 1933 308p $2.40 215

1 Religion—Philosophy 2 Religion and science 33-36225

"A criticism of Jeans, Eddington, and other scientists, and affirmation of the author's belief in religion and the positive values of goodness, beauty, and truth." Bkl.

"Whether one agrees with Dean Inge or not, one cannot withhold one's admiration from the alertness of a mind, the vitality of a faith, which is prepared for a fearless acceptance of all that science may have to offer." New statesman & Nation

Mathews, Shailer, 1863- and others

Contributions of science to religion. . . Appleton-Century 1924 427p illus $3 215

1 Religion and science 2 Science 24-28230

Dean Mathews "contributes the first and the last four of the eighteen chapters in this volume. Each of the other thirteen chapters is written by an authority in the branch of science of which he writes: Robert A. Millikan on the structure of matter; John M. Coulter on plant life; Edwin B. Frost on the structure of the cosmos; Charles B. Davenport on eugenics, and others. In these scientific chapters there is neither religion nor theology, simply a brief statement of our present knowledge in these various fields of investigation. In Dr. Mathews's four chapters of summing-up he discussed the harmony between the scientific and religious field of interest and the service that science may render faith." Book rev. digest

"A valuable book for those interested in the present effort to relate science and religion harmoniously." Journal of religion

Needham, Joseph, 1900-

1 Religion and science 31-16030
A series of twelve articles which were originally broadcast as radio talks in Great Britain in 1930. The writers are: Julian Huxley; J. Arthur Thomson; J. S. Haldane; E. W. Barnes, bishop of Birmingham; B. Malinowski; H. R. L. Sheppard, dean of Canterbury; B. H. Streeter; C. W. O'Hara; Sir Arthur S. Eddington; S. Alexander; W. R. Inge; L. P. Jacks
"All the essays are well worth reading and pondering upon; they may not carry one to any settled conclusion, but each will stimulate to criticism and independent thought." Saturday rev.

Smyth, Nathan Ayer, 1876-
Through science to God. Macmillan 1936 213p $2.50 215
1 Religion—Philosophy 2 Religion and science 36-12798
"Few recent books have offered so much to the thoughtful, inquiring reader as this compact little volume. In substance the thesis which Mr. Smyth presents is this: The progress of science has come to depend, more and more, on great hypotheses by which we are able to gain a working comprehension to the 'expanding universe' . . . He proceeds to the argument that the dependence of religious thought upon similar hypotheses establishes the kinship between science and the highest aspirations of man's spiritual being." Springfield Republican

Thomson, Sir John Arthur, 1861-1933
Science and religion. . . Scribner 1925 280p (Morse lecture, 1924) $2 215

English Bible & its story; its growth, its translators & their adventures. Lippincott 1928 318p illus $5 220
1 Bible—History [28-28343]
"This is a very straightforward account from the Protestant side, but with an accurate statement of the facts, of the history of the sources and growth of the English Bible, with a number of illustrations—Holbein portraits and others—of varying degrees of excellence. It contains a great deal of information about the different versions of the Bible in English which are not readily obtainable in any other form, and it can be recommended not only on that ground but as being simply and directly written." Saturday

James Baikie's "Romance of the Bible" (Seeley 1930 284p illus 6s) is an absorbing story of the Bible and of the world's history and progress interwoven with it

Bates, Ernest Sutherland, 1879-

Complete Bible, an American translation. . . . Univ. of Chicago press 1939 3v in 1 $3 220.5

(W) 39-28964

A translation into present-day English containing the Old Testament, translated by A. R. Gordon and others, edited by J. M. P. Smith, revised by T. J. Meek (1927); the Apocrypha translated by E. J. Goodspeed (1938); the New Testament translated by E. J. Goodspeed (1923). These volumes are obtainable separately as follows: Old Testament $2.50, New Testament $1, Apocrypha $3

"Goodspeed's New Testament . . . rests upon the discovery that the language in which the New Testament was written is the colloquial Greek of its time and place. The translator's purpose, therefore, was . . . the making of a new translation which would convey to present readers both the thought and the mood which the original conveyed to its first readers. The success with which this purpose has been achieved has been generally acclaimed. The original [of the Old Testament] is not colloquial. The eminent scholars who collaborated with Professor Smith have been duly mindful of this, and have departed from the familiar versions less radically." W. E. Garrison in Christian century

Holy Bible; containing the Old and New Testaments; a new tr. by James Moffatt. Harper 1926 2v in 1 $3.50 220.5

32-10498

A one volume edition on thin paper of the translation originally published in 3 volumes, the Old Testament in 2v, 1924-25, the New Testament in 1913, new edition revised 1922. Not a revision of any previous version but an original translation into modern English

"The authors of the Revised Version had a great opportunity, but it cannot be said that they made the most of it; a very considerable number of beautiful and moving phrases were still left in the work after they had done with it. But Professor Moffatt has put things right. In his crisp and nervous version, the Bible should at last come into its own, as a book which no gentleman's library should be without. Its influence among the clergy should also be considerable." New statesman

Modern reader's Bible; the books of the Bible with three books of the Apocrypha, presented in modern literary form; ed. with introductions and notes by R. G. Moulton. Macmillan 1907 1733p $2.50 220.5

7-34574

"In the belief that the present form and arrangement of the Bible with its mixture of great and small, text and note, matter and appendix, poetry and prose, are a hindrance to its literary appreciation, Dr Moulton has prepared this [work]. By selection and condensation, by the omission of exegesis and notes which interrupt the continuity of the narrative, and arbitrary chapter and verse divisions which take from the pleasure of Bible reading, he has brought out the unity of the Bible and presented it in literary form." * Bible designed to be read as living literature; the Old and the New Testaments in the King James version. . . ed. by E. S. Bates. Simon & Schuster 1936 xxiv,1239p $3.75 220.5

36-27455

In this new arrangement of the Bible as contemporary literature "the text of the King James Version is followed, except in the case of Proverbs, Job, Ecclesiastes, and the Song of Songs, where that of the Revised Version is used; the arrangement of the books is by time and subject matter; prose passages are printed as prose, verse as verse, drama as drama; letters as letters; the spelling and punctuation are modernized; genealogies and repetitions are omitted, as well as the whole of Chronicles, the minor Epistles, and similar unimportant passages throughout." Publisher's note

"With taste, discernment, and a minimum of comment, most of which is informed, and to this reviewer highly interesting, Mr. Bates has elucidated the huge heterogeneous work. Or rather by a sensible rearrangement he has as far as possible allowed it to elucidate itself. Of course in this he is under obligation duly acknowledged to Professor Moulton and other scholars. But he seems to me thoroughly justified in his own effort. . . The whole of his undertaking is good." Sat. rev. of lit.

"This work is designed for the use of teachers giving biblical instruction to children in both day school and Sunday school. It has more the character of an elementary biblical encyclopedia than of the usual commentary. . . It is an assemblage of brief essays about topics important for an understanding of the various biblical books (including the Old Testament Apocrypha), followed by comments on selected passages. The selection of passages has been made after a careful survey of the best 'Agreed Syllabuses' now used in England. More than forty contributors, all widely experienced and well trained in one or another type of religious activity, have lent their assistance in producing the volume. It will be much more valuable than any standard commentary for the type of teacher for whom it is prepared." Journal of religion

1 Bible. Old Testament—Criticism, interpretation, etc. 33-27288

First edition 1922. Bibliography and indexes have been revised and enlarged. The text remains the same

"A literary history of the Old Testament which traces the origin of the individual books, shows how they grew out of the life and history of the people, how they in turn influenced the development of Israel, and how they finally became united to form the canon of the Old Testament. The chapters follow the order in which the various books originated." Book rev. digest

"The treatment is scholarly; and the author's feeling for literary qualities enables him to offer many a happy interpretation which the ordinary professor of theology is apt to miss." Freeman

1 Jesus Christ—Parables [28-16652]
"This volume by a New York minister unites the merits of scholarship and the practical wisdom of a successful pastor-preacher. The author is at pains to clarify difficult questions involving textual criticism, and at the same time he never allows details to obscure the central moral and spiritual truths for which these matchless stories stand." Scott, Ernest Findlay, 1868-

Validity of the Gospel record. Scribner 1938 213p (International library of Christian knowledge) $2 226

1 Bible. New Testament. Gospels 38-10676

"The aim of the present book is to call attention to some factors which have too often been overlooked in the consideration of the Gospel testimony. It is now admitted that our existing Gospels have grown out of an earlier tradition, which was handed down orally before it was committed to writing. The credibility of the record depends on the value of that tradition; and the author has sought to discover how it was formed and transmitted." Preface

"One who expects to find in this defense of the 'validity' of the gospels an affirmation of the historical accuracy of every detail will be sadly disappointed . . . Readers are likely to apply the notion of validity much more widely than Professor Scott would himself allow." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

1 Bible. New Testament. Gospels [A32-2865]

Fresh discoveries since the book was first published in 1924 have lead to numerous minor alterations in points of detail

The aim has been to co-ordinate the results achieved along different lines of investigation and to use them and the author's own research as a basis for further conclusions. The layman as well as the minister and scholar has been kept in view in the arrangement of the material. Condensed from Introduction

"This volume is a massive and important contribution to the lower and higher criticism of the Gospels, and indirectly to their historical criticism, since the investigation of the text, the sources, the authorship, and date is the indispensable preliminary to the determination of historical value." Teaching of Jesus; studies of its form and content. [2d ed] Cambridge 1935 351p 15s 232

1 Bible. New Testament. Gospels 2 Jesus Christ—Teachings [32-15730]

First published 1931. In the second edition "it has not been possible to carry out any extensive revision of the text . . . I have, however, added a few notes, which will be found on pp. 330-333." Preface to the second edition

"These studies, in the form and content of the synoptic record of the teaching of Jesus, are linked together, the author tells us, by two main ideas. One is that the substance of the Gospel is neither a dogmatic system nor an ethical code, but a Person and a Life. The other is that the key to the New Testament is the notion of the Saving Remnant." "This biography, told in simple, popular language, is conservative in following the traditional story. It is the result of sixteen years of thought and many visits to the Holy Land where the author by observing the ways of life of today, sought for light on the ways of the people of Bible days." Book rev. digest

"Mr. Matthews's strong point is his intimate and detailed knowledge of Palestine and its customs: a knowledge which enables him, almost at every page, to throw fresh vivid light on the Gospel record, and gives his book a real value of its own. The numerous and excellent photographs, many of them astonishingly apposite, are genuine illustrations of the text." Spectator

"A book of personal religious experiences and conclusions that may bring inspiration and comfort to many readers." Wis. bul.

Mackintosh, Douglas Clyde, 1877-
Reasonableness of Christianity. Scribner 1925 293p (Bross lib.) $1.50 239

1 Christianity—Evidences 25-23428

"The author frankly parts company at the outset with the traditional method of the defense of Christianity, and maintains that notwithstanding the value which the old apologetic had in its time it can no longer be successfully employed in the present scientific age. . . The defense set forth is not concerned with any of the adventitious and temporary aspects of Christianity, but with its essential and vital character. It is that for which reasonableness is claimed." Journal of religion

McKee, Elmore McNeill, 1896-
What use is religion? Scribner 1939 260p $2 239

1 Christianity—Evidences 39-10230

"This book which considers religion as a powerful force was written to answer the sincere skeptics whom the author obviously enjoys knowing." Cincinnati

"There are many helpful illustrations throughout the book which make the central thesis abundantly clear. The chapters are brief, the material skillfully handled, and practically the whole scope of the Christian religion at least implied. Its non-technical style will make it particularly interesting to laymen." Churchman

Nichols, Beverley, 1899-
Fool hath said. Doubleday 1936 271p $2 239

1 Christianity—Evidences 2 Oxford group 3 Sociology, Christian 36-9646

The author "presents in intimate, informal fashion, arguments for a belief in God and Christianity, and . . . applies the teachings of Christ to some present-day problems—sex, economics, war. Mr Nichols has become a member of the Oxford Group Movement and pays it tribute in this book." Book rev. digest.

"Although his chapter on 'Christ and money' is extraordinarily naïve and his account of Biblical criticism extremely elementary, he has much to say which is moving, memorable, and of value, in every other part of his book, which is sincere in every line." Manchester guardian

"These confessions were written at the end of the fourth century by the most distinguished of the Latin fathers as a revelation of his spiritual experience. They have been a source of religious inspiration through the centuries." Pratt alcove

De Salles, Francis, Saint
Introduction to the devout life; in a new tr. by Allan Ross, with an introduction by the same. [4th ed.] Benziger 1937 309p $1.40 242

First English translation 1613

"From the time of its publication up to the present day, it has been recognized as a spiritual masterpiece, and its teaching is as fresh and as applicable to-day as it was when it came from the pen of its author." Introduction

Francis of Assisi, Saint, 1182-1226
Little flowers of St Francis, The Mirror of perfection [and] Life of St Francis. Dutton xxii,397p (Everyman's lib.) 90c 242

A11-30

"This literary gem relates the life of Francis, his companions and disciples, as it appeared to the popular imagination at the beginning of the fourteenth century. . . . That which gives these stories an inestimable worth is what for want of a better term we might call their atmosphere. They are legendary, worked over, exaggerated, false even, if you please, but they give us with a vivacity and intensity of coloring something that we shall search for in vain elsewhere—the surroundings in which St Francis lived. More than any other biography the Fioretti transport us to Umbria, to the mountains of the March of Ancona; they make us visit the hermitages, and mingle with the life, half childlike, half angelic, which was that of their inhabitants. . . In default of accuracy of detail, the incidents which are related here contain a higher truth—their tone is true. Here are words that were never uttered, acts that never took place, but the soul and the heart of the early Franciscans were surely what they are depicted here." Paul Sabatier

Imitatio Christi

* Imitation of Christ by Thomas à Kempis; illus. by Majeska. Smith, Richard R. 1940 245p illus $3 242

40-8482

The text of this edition is based on the translation of the Jesuit Anthony Hoskins which first appeared about 1613. Illustrated with twenty-seven pictures originally painted as miniatures and reproduced here, full size, in six colors

A devotional classic originally written in Latin in the 15th century. "It represents the religious life as a life of moral discipline under which the soul is controlled by purity, veracity, obedience, brotherliness, and charity. It is formally a cluster of short treatises." George Leopold Hurst

245 HYMNOLOGY

This class includes books about hymns and collections of hymns without music. Religious poetry is classed with literature, in classes 808.81, 811.08, 821.08, etc.

In addition to the titles listed in this class, the following is also recommended:

Palgrave, F. T. comp. Treasury of sacred song selected from the English lyrical poetry of four centuries. Oxford 374p (Oxford standard authors) $1.50 First published 1889 and several times reprinted

Benson, Louis FitzGerald, 1855-1930

English hymn; its development and use in worship. Doran 1915 624p front o.p. 1939 245

1 Hymns—History and criticism 15-11888

"Valuable contribution to the history of hymns and the evolution of congregational song. . . Particularly admirable is the inspirational message which glows from every page, but which in no way detracts from the scholarly viewpoint. Indeed, the book is unique in this blending of judicial temper with quiet hortatory values." Amer. jour. theology

"Everywhere we find a full use of the latest authorities, the references are numerous and clear, and there is an index of thirty-four pages." Times (London) lit. sup.

Studies of familiar hymns, first-second series. Presbyterian bd. 1917-23 2v o.p. 1939 245

1 Hymns—History and criticism

First series first published 1903. New edition with corrections 1917

Takes up hymns which have become great popular favorites, tells the story of each and the occasion of its writing, providing also a brief biography of the author

"Dr. Benson is regarded as the foremost American hymnologist. His book is therefore an authoritative volume of reference." Bookman

Brawley, Benjamin Griffith, 1882-1939

* History of the English hymn. Abingdon 1932 256p illus $2 245

1 Hymns—History and criticism 32-11467

"This is a complete introduction to English hymnody, dealing principally with the words of the hymns. It has an approach calculated to appeal to the general reader as well as the seminary student." N.Y. evening post

"Will be useful to those who have need of a somewhat elementary book on the development of hymnology and its place in the life and worship of the church." Christian century

1 Hymns—History and criticism 2 Religious poetry 7-6630

A new and revised edition of Mr Butterworth's two books: "Story of the hymns" (1875) and "Story of the tunes" (1890) rearranged with some new material

"Mr. Butterworth himself passed over his manuscript to Mr. Brown, who has executed his difficult task not only with sympathy for his subject, but with no little original research. This work is more valuable than most popular books on hymns and also more readable." Independent

Gillman, Frederick John, 1866-

Evolution of the English hymn; an historical survey of the origins and development of the hymns of the Christian church; with a foreword by Sir H. W. Davies. Allen, G. 1927 312p illus 10s 6d 245

1 Hymns—History and criticism [27-23486]

Formerly carried also by Macmillan

"This book is more comprehensive than its title suggests. In reality it is a survey of the origin and history of Christian hymns from the first century to the present day. It is not merely descriptive; it contains also much analysis of the motives and aspirations that prompted hymnody in the course of its evolution." Journal of religion

"Gaps should be filled in the later editions to which this book must surely run. Here is scholarship with a rare facility for expression." Spectator

Hart, William J.

Hymns in human experience. Harper 1931 221p front o.p. 1939 245

1 Hymns—History and criticism 31-14203

"Deals with the origin and history of Christian hymns of all ages and nations, with special reference to those in the hymn books of English-speaking countries. Articles on subjects in hymnology, hymn writers and separate hymns, all in one alphabet; important subjects treated at considerable length; signed articles, bibliographies." Mudge

Marks, Harvey Blair, 1874-

Rise and growth of English hymnody; foreword by J. DeW. Perry; introduction by H. A. Smith. Revell 1937 288p $2.50 245

1 Hymns—History and criticism 37-15181

"The chief value of this book is in the biographical notes, taking up most of the volume, on the writers of hymns in common use, and in the stories of hymns and the influences which produced them. It makes this information available in convenient form for the use of organists and clergy who wish to stimulate the interest of choirs and congregation in hymn singing." Living church

Lyric religion; the romance of immortal hymns. Appleton-Century 1931 517p illus $4 245

1 Hymns—History and criticism 31-28493

"In these studies of 150 hymns the author includes (1) the text of the hymn, including original stanzas no longer sung, and in some cases the music; (2) the Biblical passage on which the hymn is based; (3) the story of the author and the hymn; (4) suggestions for its use in worship. The volume contains a bibliography and eleven indexes including indexes to sources of hymn tunes, scripture passages, authors and translators, composers, and subjects." Book rev. digest

"A very useful and interesting book this volume will doubtless prove for leaders of church schools, directors of religious education, organists, choir singers and others whose duties make desirable a considerable knowledge of religious hymns and practical efficiency in directing their use." N.Y. Times

246 SYMBOLISM. RELIGIOUS ART

In this catalog books on symbolism and religious art are classed 755

248 PERSONAL RELIGION

In the Decimal classification there is no separate number for Christian mysticism and some libraries may prefer to keep the books in 248 with Personal religion. In this catalog all books on mysticism are classified 140

In addition to the titles listed in this class, the following are recommended:

Benson, Clarence Irving, 1897-

Eight points of the Oxford group; an exposition for Christians and pagans. Oxford 1936 163p $1.75 248

1 Oxford group [37-23818]

"This book comes out of the group's work in Australia. For many persons it will be freshly invigorating to know about these points: Surrender, sharing, restitution, the four absolutes, quiet time, guidance, witness and fellowship. They are illustrated by actual incidents and persons, and one sees how this movement moves. There is an appendix of thirty-five answers to questions about the group which clears up misunderstanding and makes a good catechism." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

"Whether the reader agrees or disagrees with the author's general outline of the Oxford Group methods and aims, this book has a reality in its religious enthusiasm that makes it worth reading." Living church

Brown, William Adams, 1865-

Life of prayer in a world of science. Scribner 1927 194p $1.75 248

1 Prayer 27-9589

"The author writes 'as one who desires to talk over with those who would like to pray if they could, some principles which have made prayer easier and more satisfying to him.' He draws on psychology, history, philosophy and education to aid in his interpretation of what prayer is, and what it does." Book rev. digest

"The whole book is a fresh, invigorating presentation of an old theme. It is one of the most suggestive and helpful books on prayer that has been written in recent years." Boston Transcript

Prayer; a study in the history and psychology of religion; tr. and ed. by Samuel McComb with the assistance of J. E. Park. Oxford 1932 xxviii,376p $2 248
1 Prayer 32-12970

"Dr. McComb, with the help of Dr. Park, has translated the main parts of professor Heiler's 'Das Gebet'. . . The essentials of the book are reproduced in this English edition. . . The book is a critical history of prayer, of its manifestations and expressions through the ages. . . In the hands of the grammarian or the pedant, the subject might have been dissected and rationalized till all the wonder was gone from it. It would be hard to rival Dr. Heiler in historical knowledge, in scholarship, or in literary skill. Yet, at the end of it all, the mystery remains." Times (London) lit. sup.

Henson, Herbert Hensley, bp. of Durham, 1863-
Oxford group movement. 2d ed with a new preface Oxford 1934 xl,82p $1 248
1 Oxford group 34-8547

Published in England 1933 under title: "Group movement." The 2d edition does not include part 3, nor the appendix

A small book on the movement. "Addressing primarily the clergy of his own diocese, the bishop of Durham analyzes the claims and principles of Buchmanism, approves its purposes, and gives an unfavorable verdict upon its program." Christian century

"It is a brilliant and convincing criticism, pungent in its candour, yet never bitter or unfair. Dr Henson does full justice to the good points of the Movement, and emphasizes the lessons which the Church can learn by the indubitable success of the Groups." Times (London) lit. sup.

Inge, William Ralph, 1860-
Personal religion and the life of devotion; with an introduction by the Lord Bishop of London. Longmans 1924 96p front $1 248
1 Christian life 24-1988

"In this little book on personal religion Dean Inge writes of the place of the mystical experience in the religious life—of faith, hope and joy, and self-consecration. In the last chapter, on bereavement, he lifts the veil from his own experience in the loss of his little daughter." Book rev. digest

Jones, Rufus Matthew, 1863-
New quest. Macmillan 1928 202p $1.75 248
1 Spiritual life 28-22934

"A collection of what the author calls 'essays,' but which are really effective sermons, using imagery and biblical incidents and literary allusions and impressions gained from travel to illustrate various aspects of a rich spiritual ideal of life." Journal of religion

"This . . . book by the distinguished Professor of Philosophy at Haverford College is written with the clearness of outline and fine idealistic vision which he has maintained throughout a number of volumes. His philosophy is not a discussion of abstract ideas but of living issues, and his idealism is constantly humanized by illustrations from everyday experience." Times (London) lit. sup.

Kagawa, Toyohiko, 1888-
Love, the law of life; tr. by J. F. Gressitt, with a foreword by R. M. Jones; and a biography of Mr Kagawa by E. M. Hinder and H. F. Topping. Winston 1929 313p front $1 248
1 Love (Theology) 30-5272

"The outstanding Christian teacher of Japan defines in this book various forms of love, outlines his views upon the ethics of love, and treats the subject in relation to economics, law, education, art, science and religion. The book is prefaced with a biography of Kagawa and his activities." Book rev. digest

"Written primarily for his fellow countrymen it assumes a somewhat unfamiliar form to English readers, but the author shows that he is well informed on the subjects with which he deals and inculcates a Christian view of life and terms which seem likely to commend them to all thoughtful readers." Times (London) lit. sup.

Luccock, Halford Edward, 1885-

Christianity and the individual in a world of crowds. Cokesbury press 1936 165p $1 248

1 Christian life 2 Individualism 37-2969

Chapters in this volume were given as lectures on the Jarrell Foundation at Emory university in January, 1936

"In the first chapter the author reminds us that life on the human level consists of and depends on the development of personality; that a large amount of social progress has come through individuals; and that the individual is inextricably in the very center of the Christian gospel. Religion is concerned rightly with 'mobs turning back into men.' The main substance of this work is arranged under four chapter titles: 'God and the Individual,' 'To-day's Tensions in Personal Life,' 'Salvation—Quest and Finding,' and 'Preaching to Personal Needs.'" Christian century

Russell, Arthur James

For sinners only. Harper 1932 293p $1.50 248

1 Conversion 2 Oxford group 32-26868

An account of Buchmanism or the Oxford group movement

"The movement has developed a language of its own which although it may be different from that of the old evangelism is certainly a formula in which the outsider needs initiation. Mr. Russell's book is filled with the stories of 'changed lives.' It is more impressive for its picture of spiritual hunger than for good writing or moving representation of the movement." 1 Prayer 40-4799

Contents: General thoughts on prayer; On setting oneself to pray; Ejaculation, vision, and benediction; Distractions and disturbing thoughts; Thanksgiving and gratitude; Practice of intercession; Intercession and petition; Penitence and confession; Drudgery and discipline; Using and making books of prayer; For busy people; Cells of prayer; Some aspects of God's response to prayer; Divine guidance; Tertullian's epilogue

"However, this is no ordinary book on prayer. It breathes Dr. Stewart's rare spirit, insight and faith and it conveys as simply as a primer the great mysteries of prayer to the seeking reader." Kirkus

Taylor, Jeremy, 1613-1667
Rule and exercises of holy living (and dying) Longmans 2v in 1 $1.75 248
1 Christian life 2 Devotional exercises [A18-2104]

"Holy living" was first published in 1650 and "Holy dying" in 1651

"'The Rule and Exercises of Holy Living' provided a manual of Christian practice, which has retained its place with devout readers. . . It deals with 'the means and instruments of obtaining every virtue, and the remedies against every vice, and considerations serving to the resisting all temptations together with prayers containing the whole Duty of a Christian.' 'Holy Dying' was perhaps even more popular." Encyclopedia Britannica, 11th edition

Underhill, Evelyn, 1875-
The spiritual life; four broadcast talks. Harper 1937 142p illus $1.25 248
1 Spiritual life 37-28762

"Four radio talks which present in simple form the author's ideas on spiritual life, objective worship, and communion and cooperation with God." Cleveland

"Without dogmatism, the fundamental necessities of the Christian life are set forth with the effectiveness of simplicity. It is a book that may be read with profit. The fact of God's presence, the need for faith and for daily communion with the Deity, are emphasized without wearying insistence." Christian science monitor

* Social and religious problems of young people; a handbook for group and individual use. Abingdon 1934 304p $1.75 248
1 Christian life 2 Social problems 3 Youth—Religious life 35-8534

"The authors have had wide experience in the direction of discussion groups. In this handbook they make available to youth leaders an introduction to both method of procedure and materials for study. . . The eighteen subjects that are treated include many of the 'social and religious' issues that concern liberal-minded young peole in our day. It is assumed that if youth would take seriously the study of these subjects they would equip themselves with a workable philosophy of life." Journal of religion

"These are no mere academic discussions, they are vital, concrete, lucid and fair. . . This work is modern, but eminently constructive." Boston Transcript

* Reason for living; an approach to the persistent questions of life. Scribner 1934 xxiii,306p $2 248
1 Christian life 2 Conduct of life 34-39330

"This book has come into being after its author has listened, over a period of ten years, to the questions of thousands of college students, both men and women. . . The most persistent questions have been preserved, and, after being classified under the general topics most frequently discussed, are here given." Preface

"Dr. Wicks is addressing himself to the theologically untutored and the morally confused. To his task he brings a remarkable freshness of insight and simplicity of language. One leaves his fireside pretty well convinced." Christian century

Wieman, Henry Nelson, 1884-
* Methods of private religious living. Macmillan 1929 219p $2 248
1 Christian life 29-2621

Originally published in the monthly bulletin of the Institute of sacred literature under title: Experiments in personal religion

248.2 Mysticism

Books on mysticism are classified 140 in this catalog

250 HOMILETIC. PASTORAL

In addition to the titles listed in this class, the following is recommended:

Brown, C. R. Making of a minister. Appleton-Century 1927 294p o.p. 1939

Cashman, Robert, 1886-
Business administration of a church. Willett 1937 163p (Minister's professional lib.) $1.50 250
1 Church work 2 Theology, Pastoral 37-27239

The author "is a layman with many years of business experience. He writes only on those phases of church organization and administration which his experience qualifies him to discuss, leaving to preachers to write of the many problems of worship, education and committee administration which demand their energy. At the same time the title limits his field. He is discussing administration in a local church and is not at all concerned with denominational, board or interchurch administration." Christian century

Hewitt, Arthur Wentworth, 1883-
Highland shepherds; a book of the rural pastorate. Willett 1939 246p $2 250

1 Rural churches 2 Theology, Pastoral 39-31304

"A guide for ministers in country churches, dealing with everyday affairs, such as church attendance, the conduct of worship, pastoral visiting, the prayer meeting, as well as preaching." Ontario library review

"One of the most sparkling and timely books ever written on the rural ministry, that ought to be in the hands not only of the country parson but of every minister of the gospel. . . The book is characterized by good sense and wit and has literary and artistic merit." Churchman

Mueller, Frederick Ferdinand, 1904- and Hartshorne, Hugh, 1885-
Ethical dilemmas of ministers. Scribner 1937 250p $2 250

1 Theology, Pastoral 37-21926

"Based on a questionnaire addressed to Protestant clergymen, this book discusses the ministers' attitude toward marriage, marriage of divorced persons, preaching on social and economic questions, fees, professional relations, etc. Bibliography." Book rev. digest

"This book, with its extraordinary revelation of current practice and opinion, will prove a storehouse of valuable information for groups and seminaries who wish to give consideration to the problem involved." Christian century

Palmer, Albert Wentworth, 1879-
Minister's job. Willett 1937 102p (Minister's professional lib.) $1.25 250

1 Theology, Pastoral 38-27059

"Practical and inspirational advice is given to the prospective or practicing minister in the form of analyses of the ideal requirements for a minister as preacher, priest, counselor, administrator, teacher, and human being. Other chapters cover the minister's wife, a self-analysis for ministers, the church and its minister. Clearly written." Bkl.

251 PREACHING

In addition to the titles listed in this class, the following is recommended:

Jowett, J. H. Preacher, his life and work. Harper 1912 239p $1

Atkins, Gaius Glenn, 1868-
Preaching and the mind of today. Round table 1934 227p o.p. 1939 251

1 Preaching 34-27288

"The author believes that what is most needed at the present time is a conviction that 'the Christian way is so obvious that we have no alternative to it.' He has written most ably of a minister's opportunities in the modern world, of the history of preaching, and of the technique of planning and delivering a sermon." Cincinnati

Brown, Charles Reynolds, 1862-
Art of preaching. Macmillan 1922 250p (Lyman Beecher lectures on preaching in Yale university) $1.75 251

1 Preaching 22-22071

"The present volume is in Dean Brown's best style, lively with flashes of humor, rich in scripture phraseology and allusion, earnest in emphasizing the prime motive of preaching. This book is the recipe for a vivid sermon or any number of them." Springfield Republican

Buttrick, George Arthur, 1892-
* Jesus came preaching; Christian preaching in the new age. Scribner 1931 239p (Yale lectures on preaching) $2.50 251

1 Preaching 31-33420

"Taking into consideration the modern attitude toward religion and the church, the author talks with frankness and conviction of ideals for the preacher of today in work, sermon craftsmanship, personality and type of preaching. . . . The author's human and likewise idealistic approach extends their appeal to the large group of laymen interested in the church of today." N.Y. libraries

Coffin, Henry Sloane, 1877-
What to preach. Harper 1926 189p (Warrack lectures on preaching) $1 251

1 Preaching 26-21366

Five lectures discussing expository, doctrinal, ethical, pastoral and evangelistic preaching

Newton, Joseph Fort, 1876-
New preaching; a little book about a great art. Cokesbury press 1930 187p $1 251

1 Preaching 30-3789

"This book about the art of preaching, by an eminently successful practitioner of that art, not only teaches its principles beautifully and effectively but, what is even more important, will renew the preacher's zest for his pulpit ministry." Christian century

Oman, John Wood, 1860-
* Concerning the ministry. Harper 1937 180p $2.25 251

1 Preaching 37-2093

"The material in these essays was originally delivered as informal talks to students preparing for the ministry. The underlying purpose . . . was to discuss 'the human side of preaching, especially intercourse with life and men and books.'" Book rev. digest

"Seldom has a volume which is both professedly and actually about preaching combined so much practical advice with so much stimulus to the moral character and spiritual capacity not of preachers only but of all Christian men. . . Though there are ministers of Churches other than Dr. Oman's to whom he will seem to cover less than the whole ground, there are very few who will not learn much from his pages." Times (London) lit. sup.

Patton, Carl Safford, 1866-
Preparation and delivery of sermons. Willett 1938 191p (Minister's professional lib.) $2 251

1 Preaching (W) 38-10064

"Beginning with the propositions that preaching has the primary place in the minister's work, and that the first duty of the preacher is to be sure that he has 'something to say,' the writer discusses the material, structure, style, preparation, and delivery of sermons in a way which encourages the reader to press on to perfection in the practice of the art, which he says, 'has to be learned by doing.'" Crozer quarterly

Prichard, Harold Adye, 1882-
Minister, the method, and the message; suggestions on preaching. Scribner 1932 303p $2 251

1 Preaching 32-8289

"Cannon Prichard out of a rich experience talks on the minister and his reading and also about his discipline of mind and body. He goes very practically into the things which make or mar a minister's efficiency and talks not about theories but the conditions that confront him." Boston Transcript

"Part two, dealing with the preacher's method of preparation and delivery, is greatly enriched by permitting nine of the great preachers of our day to tell personally of their methods. These statements, plus the author's comments, give an instructive section." Christian century

258 CHURCH WELFARE WORK

Bonnell, John Sutherland, 1893-
Pastoral psychiatry. Harper 1938 237p $2.50 258

1 Psychology, Pathological 2 Psychology, Religious 3 Theology, Pastoral 38-38024

"A recital of the author's experience as a pastoral counselor, and indicates how a minister whose mind is furnished with the insights which psychological and psychiatric study provide may aid distraught individuals to achieve a religious adjustment to life. There is a wealth of helpful discussion of actual cases." Christian century

"The book is valuable not only to those who deal professionally with the welfare of human beings, but it will definitely add to the equipment of the informed laymen." Churchman

Cabot, Richard Clarke, 1868- and Dicks, Russell Leslie, 1906-
Art of ministering to the sick. Macmillan 1936 384p $2.50 258

1 Church work with the sick 2 Medicine, Clerical 36-4792

"A discussion of the ways and means by which the Protestant minister can help doctor and patient in cases of sickness." Book rev. digest

"This book is the joint work of a distinguished physician and a devoted clergyman. In its pages, science and religion join hands for the service of suffering humanity. Would that every scientist skeptical and scornful of religion, and every minister fearful of science, might be numbered among its readers, and thus be shown how religion and science, once foes, may now be friends." Survey

260 CHRISTIAN CHURCH: INSTITUTIONS AND WORK

261 THE CHURCH. CHRISTIAN SOCIOLOGY

In addition to the titles listed in this class, the following are recommended:

Allen, A. V. G. Christian institutions. Scribner 1897 (International theological lib.) $3.50

Macmurray, John. Creative society; a study of the relation of Christianity to communism; foreword by Sherwood Eddy. Assn. press 1936 168p $1.50

Morrison, C. C. Social gospel and the Christian cultus. Harper 1933 259p $2

Troeltsch, Ernst. Social teaching of the Christian churches; tr. by Olive Wyon, with an introductory note by Charles Gore. Macmillan 1931 2v (Halley Stewart publications) o.p. 1939

Barry, Frank Russell, 1890-
Revelance of the church. [3d ed] Scribner 1936 235p $2.50 261

1 Christian ethics 2 Christianity—Evidences 3 Church 4 Worship [36-874]

"Canon Barry frankly faces the present, admitting the weakness of the Church in society as compared with her position of even a few years ago. Attendance at services of worship is reduced and membership is scarcely holding its own. But the paradox is that there is more religion in the hearts of men than ever before." Crozer quarterly

Bennett, John Coleman, 1902-
* Christianity—and our world. Assn. press 1936 65p (Hazen bks. on religion) 50c 261

1 Christianity 37-1464

"In this little book an attempt is made to interpret what Christianity as a whole means for our world." Author's preface

Contents: Christianity and secularism; Christian ethic and the moral confusion; Christianity and the economic order; Christianity and the new tyranny

1 Sociology, Christian 35-7655

"A discussion, not only only of the stand the Christian church should take toward present social evils, but also of the fundamental theological questions underlying social Christianity—the sources of personal sin and social evil, God's purposes and power, man's freedom of will." Book rev. digest

"The whole book is well worth reading by every one eager to search into the nature of our social evils. . . [This] book would be of exceptional value in the multiplying courses on Christian Social Ethics offered in parishes and Institutes." Living church

Bower, William Clayton, 1878-
(ed.) Church at work in the modern world ... Univ. of Chicago press 1935 304p maps (Chicago. University. Divinity school. Publications) $2 261

1 Church work 2 Protestant churches 3 Theology, Practical 35-27395

Eight churchmen survey the practical work of the Protestant churches in America. Contents: Growing-point of Christianity, by W. C. Bower; Local church and its community, by S. C. Kincheloe; Co-operation of the churches, by S. Mathews; Religious ceremonials and their symbolism, by E. S. Ames; Church as educator, by W. C. Bower; Church's work with individuals, by C. T. Holman; Church as a missionary agency, by A. G. Baker; Church and the social order, by S. Mathews; Task of the preacher, by S. J. Case; Print and propaganda, by W. E. Garrison; Facing the future, by W. C. Bower

"An acute analysis of what is happening to some of the Christian churches. The caliber of the eight collaborators immediately recommends the publication. Also the frank adoption of the historical and sociological point of view by the volume clarifies its intention." Christian century

Selected bibliography at end of each essay

Brehmer, Robert George
Social doctrines of the Catholic church; with a preface by J. M. Gillis. Putnam 1937 141p $2 261

1 Sociology, Christian 37-1349

"In this book a non-Catholic discusses the teachings of the Catholic church as they relate to certain social, economic and political matters. Partial contents: Catholic marriage; Birth control; Divorce; Co-operatives and Catholicism; Socialism; Catholic education; Labor unions and Catholicism; International ethics. Bibliography." Book rev. digest

Brown, William Adams, 1865-
Church and state in contemporary America; a study of the problems they present and the principles which should determine their relationship. . . Scribner 1936 360p $2.75 261

1 Church and state in the U.S. 37-1465

"Altho church and state are separate in this country, there are many points at which they touch and many questions concerning their relationship that need definition. This book, making a pioneer approach to these questions, is an outgrowth of a committee appointed by the Federal Council of Churches to make a study of the situation." Wis. bul.

The study "is mainly concerned with principles, relationships and agencies . . . The limits of the inquiry have been well defined and properly observed. Dr. Brown's personal treatment enhances the reader's interest in the report, which has something of interest for all church members." Springfield Republican

Classified bibliography: p335-54

Dawson, Christopher Henry, 1889-
Religion and the modern state. . . Sheed 1935 xxii,154p front $2 261

1 Church and state 2 Socialism, Christian 36-100

"Written by a Roman Catholic, it is in spirit and outlook of almost equal moment for thoughtful Protestants He sees that in the new totalitarian state something is emerging which challenges the cardinal principles of Christianity . . . The conflict between Christianity and communism is delineated in a masterful fashion." Religious bk. club bul.

Eddy, George Sherwood, 1871-
Revolutionary Christianity. Willett 1939 229p $2 261

1 Christianity 2 Sociology, Christian (W) 39-27588

"A useful book [which] will stir the reader to a renewed concern for the social implications of the traditional Christian faith." Living church

Eliot, Thomas Stearns, 1888-
Idea of a Christian society. Harcourt 1940 104p $1.50 261

1 Sociology, Christian 40-3912

"The difference between a 'Christian society' and 'the kind of society in which we are now living' is the theme of these lectures . . . The central contention is that our modern culture is 'mainly negative.'" Religious bk. club bul.

"To bring the contemporary intelligence to an attitude of respect for Christian thought is an undertaking as arduous as it is urgent. Mr. Eliot's book is a very valuable contribution towards this end." Times (London) lit. sup.

Furfey, Paul Hanly, 1896-
Fire on the earth. Macmillan 1936 159p $2 261

1 Catholic church — Apologetic works 2 Sociology, Christian 36-17679

"An interpretation of Catholic social action. Documented with recent Papal encyclicals." Cleveland

"This book makes an honest effort to face the difficulties that lie in the way of social progress, particularly as that progress is aided or hindered by charity, philanthropy, and organized relief . . . The remedy, as outlined by Father Furfey, is definitely Roman Catholic in its nature . . . We are told to appeal to the example of the Saints, and to build our hopes for the future on the redemptive power of God in man." Churchman

Goslin, Mrs Ryllis Clair (Alexander) 1901-
Church and state. Foreign policy 1937 46p illus (Headline bks.) pa 25c 261

Grant, Frederick Clifton, 1891-
Gospel of the kingdom. Macmillan 1940 204p $2 261

1 Jesus Christ—Teachings 2 Kingdom of God (W) 40-9241

Haskell lectures, 1940

"The purpose of this book is to set forth and discuss the new approach to the life and teaching of Jesus, chiefly his Gospel of the Kingdom, and to the origin of Christianity which results from a fuller application of the methods of historical and literary research to the tradition underlying the gospels." Preface

Holt, Arthur Erastus, 1876-
This nation under God. Willett 1939 205p $2 261

1 Democracy 2 Sociology, Christian 39-29496

Delivered as the Rauschenbusch lectures at the Colgate-Rochester theological seminary

"The necessity for a greater equality in economic opportunity, the development of higher standards of service in the vocational and professional groups, a reconciliation of the urban rural conflict and a larger justice to the agricultural producer—these are among the issues with which [the author] deals in considerable detail. For the way out he looks not to government control but to the voluntary action of the people, but he is under no illusion that the goals can be secured without a sustained and heroic struggle." Religious bk. club bul.

"The importance of this volume cannot be overemphasized. No one who sees the present peril to democracy, and is interested in discovering some way for its redemption can afford to overlook it." Crozer quarterly

Jones, Rufus Matthew, 1863-
Preface to Christian faith in a new age. Macmillan 1932 206p $2 261

1 Christianity 32-13650

"Dr. Jones considers the hindrances to Christian faith in a new age and the nature and mission of the church in this confused world." Book rev. digest

"It is not simply just another book on religion. It is certainly the book of the month on religion—perhaps of the year. It clears the way, it defines the issue, it goes straight to the heart of things. It makes one think; it stirs one to live; it flashes a gleam on the way out of all this muddle—spiritual, social, industrial. It is worth anybody's reading." Boston Transcript

Leiffer, Murray Howard, 1902-
City and church in transition; a study of the medium-sized city and its organized religious life. Willett 1938 301p illus $2.50 261

1 Cities and towns 2 City churches (W) 38-27419

"This study, then, is presented not as a defense but rather as an analysis of the church; it aims to face realistically and frankly the present status and problems of the church in the medium-sized city." Foreword

Lindstrom, David Edgar
Church in rural life. Garrard 1939 145p pa 85c 261

1 Rural churches 2 Sociology, Rural 39-31173

"This volume, written by a professor of rural sociology in a college of agriculture, presents the substance of eight lectures to town and country ministers at Garrett Biblical Institute in the summer of 1938. At the core of Professor Lindstrom's thought is the idea that all institutions, but particularly the church, must work tirelessly for stabilizing economic and social security for the farmer, which stabilization is essential if the best in rural and national life is to be preserved. He traces trends in land use, group life, institutions, organizations, government relation to farmers, farmers' relation to community, rural-urban relations, and challenges the church to understand these changes and conditions and act as an integrative force in rural communities." Christian century

Mathews, Shailer, 1863-
Church and the Christian. Macmillan 1938 150p $2 261

1 Church (W) 38-27945

"Expressing his conviction that 'Protestantism needs a new appreciation of what a church as an institution means to the Christian religion,' the author considers such topics as churches as religious social groups, as channels of grace, and as moral ferments. His conclusion is that the church today should be concerned less with theology and more with social morality." Bkl.

Church and industry. Longmans 1930 273p $2 261

1 Church and labor 2 Church of England 3 Protestant Episcopal church in the U.S.A. 4 Sociology, Christian 30-34200

"Traces the history of the Christian Social Movement in England and in America." Cleveland

"The present work admirably illustrates the value of competent inquiry. Thorough, well-written, and furnished with an excellent bibliography covering the social movement in all Christian churches, it is indispenable to those interested in the work of American Episcopallanism." Christian century

Niebuhr, Helmut Richard, 1894-
Kingdom of God in America. Willett 1937 215p $2 261

1 Kingdom of God 2 U.S.—Church history 37-28492

"Professor Niebuhr states his thesis with clarity and conciseness. His lectures, given at the tercentenary summer session of the Harvard Divinity School and on the Alden-Tuthill foundation at the Chicago Theological Seminary, are 'an attempt to interpret the meaning and spirit of American Christianity as a movement which finds its center in the faith in the Kingdom of God'. . . . The 'notes,' which are substantially bibliography, testify impressively to the sources which the author has digested. . . In the main the argument moves solidly, soundly documented, bringing the thesis of each chapter to bear upon the history of the period to which the chapter belongs." Christian century

Christianity and the race problem. Assn. press 1924 xx,280p $1.25 261

1 Race problems 2 Sociology, Christian 24-25550

"Out of a wide range of experience and observation . . . [the author] discusses the possible contribution of the Christian church toward world peace, and the solution of the race problem. Aspects of race relationship are taken up from biological, political and social angles." N.Y. state lib.

"Mr. Oldham, from his position and experience, writes on this matter with real authority; and this book deserves very careful study. It is a strong and serious contribution to one of the most pressing of all problems." Saturday rev.

1 Christian ethics 2 Cooperation—U.S. 3 Sociology, Christian 36-33941

Ten essays on such subjects as Struggle to prevent war, Strive to avert fascism and other problems in the struggle for social justice

"The importance of Living Courageously is not the presentation of new material, but the preparation of familiar material in a pattern for daily devotional reading. The two companion books have proved exceedingly popular in student conferences and young people's groups. This one is likely to enjoy similar and equally deserved popularity. The series is the accepted devotional literature of young Christian America today." Christian century

Rauschenbusch, Walter, 1861-1918
Christianity and the social crisis. Macmillan 1907 429p o.p. 1939 261

1 Sociology, Christian 7-13925

"The author . . . maintains that the Christian church has failed to accomplish what was the primary purpose of the teaching of the Old and New Testaments —the transformation and ennobling of human society. He attempts to explain this failure and ends by suggesting what the Christianity of to-day may contribute towards social reconstruction." Pittsburgh

Scott, Ernest Findlay, 1868-
Kingdom of God in the New Testament. Macmillan 1931 197p o.p. 1939 261

1 Kingdom of God 31-10055

"An attempt to determine how Jesus conceived of the Kingdom of God by studying the historical background of traditional Jewish beliefs, his own teachings, and the interpretations of his teachings by his followers." Book rev. digest

"To Dr. Scott clarity of presentation is not inconsistent with thorough scholarship; the little volume can be read right through with pleasure." Living church

1 Church 2 Sociology, Christian (W) 38-13097

"The author's dynamic, stimulating survey of the influence of the church on social changes and the effect produced on the church itself by changing social forces leads him to the conclusion that the church must meet such challenges as the need for more devout church worship, the problems created by the new leisure, and service through group activities." Discussion of the development of religious opinion on social and economic problems in the 16th and 17th centuries

"It expounds with great distinction and learning Weber's famous thesis that the religious individualism of the Reformation made possible the necessary atmosphere of economic individualism. . . The sureness of his knowledge and the width of his insight make his book an invaluable essay in the history of social thought." Nation and Athenaeum

Tittle, Ernest Fremont, 1885-
* Jesus after nineteen centuries. Abingdon 1932 217p $2 261

1 Social problems 2 Sociology, Christian 33-298

A discussion of the value of the teachings of Jesus to the present generation

"The lectures which compose this volume are written in lucid style. They are thought-provoking. They present the religious message of one of America's great preachers and do so in such fashion that fundamental questions must be answered, and with such compulsion that conduct must be squared with the ethics of Jesus. The book deserves the widest audience." World tomorrow

Ward, Harry Frederick, 1873-

1 Business ethics 2 Christian ethics 3 Profit 4 Social ethics 5 Sociology, Christian 6 Wealth, Ethics of 29-6231

"Dr. Ward's purpose is to study the influence upon each other of the ethical principles and practices of the capitalistic economic system and Christian ethics, and to discover what effect economic morality has upon man's nature and how it will influence the future of human society. The investigation leads him into branching paths which he explores far enough to reveal their relation to his main theme, so that many of his pages are devoted to setting forth the influence of our economic morality on our philosophy of life." 1 Liturgies 32-34916

Edited by W. P. Thirkield and Oliver Huckel

A book of worship designed for the nonliturgical churches in America, containing "not only forms for baptism, communion, marriage, and burial, and orders of service for the laying of cornerstones and dedications, but [also] prayers for the unity of the church, for the right use of wealth, for missions and missionaries, for schools and colleges, for health and the ministers of health, for social justice, world brotherhood and international good will." Christian century

"The advantages which this book has lie in its skillful combination of ancient and modern liturgical material, the great variety and flexibility of the forms of worship services presented, the contemporary quality of its prayers, the especially fine sense of understanding of modern life and problems they reveal." Journal of religion

* Recovery of worship; a study of the crucial problem of the Protestant churches. Macmillan 1931 269p $2.50 264

1 Public worship 31-12843

The author believes that Protestant churches must develop a more convincing, more compelling and more satisfying worship in order to accomplish their mission. "Pulpit pyrotechnics, hypnotic revivals, music, operatic or syncopated, benevolent social programs, or highly intellectual sermons can never save the Church. The crucial problem of the Protestant churches is more vital and creative worship, yielding a deeper sense of God's presence and power." Introduction

"This volume is . . . an examination of certain internal and external factors that have made for continuity and for change in the organization under study. In brief, it is a study of institutional adaptation on the part of the American Y.M.C.A. It seeks to contribute to better understanding of the essential elements making for continuity and change, and to suggest ways by which it may be possible for the present-day Young Men's Christian Association to make such further timely changes as may be needed in keeping with its historic character, its chosen mission, and its opportunities." "The first three chapters trace the history of the Y.W.C.A. from 1855 to 1934. The remaining eight chapters deal in turn with special problems, such as the Y.W.C.A. and the 'woman's movement,' religion, foreign work, etc. The material is drawn largely from reports and from resolutions passed by boards, committees, and conventions. Thus the emphasis is on decisions as to policy rather than on the processes and conflicts lying behind them." American journal of sociology

"Although the book is devoid of usable sociological conclusions and is not profound, it is quite scientific in method and treatment. It should prove very useful to its intended constituency, and will serve as case material for the student of social institutions." American sociological review

1 Church history 2 Martyrs 3 Persecution 33-27225

The first English edition of this classic appeared in 1563. "The book is far more than a bare record of persecution. It is an arsenal of controversy, and a storehouse of romance, as well as a source of edification. Protestantism is traced to its origins in England, Bohemia and Germany, and the corruptions which had crept into the Church of Rome are exposed at enormous length and with unsparing denunciation." J. M. Dodds
The editor has endeavored to omit nothing essential but has rearranged some of the material and omitted some repititions. Another inexpensive modern edition is edited by W. B. Forbush (Winston 1926 370p $1.50)

1 Protestant churches 2 U.S. — Church history 3 U.S.—Religion 33-11236

"The great significance of the book is that it brings to the story of religion in America the spirit, resources and skill of the modern social historian . . . The book will give to one an indispensable exploration of the development of the whole religious situation and problems of present urgency in American life. It ought to be, and will be, standard equipment for all interested in religion, for a long time to come." Christian century

1 Dissenters 2 Protestantism 3 U.S.—Church history 4 U.S.—Religion 30-18755

"A history of the origins of American religious traditions. The book is divided into two sections. The first part deals with the English dissenters from the time of Wycliff, thru the days of the Lollards, Henry VIII, and Queen Elizabeth. The second part is devoted to the history of dissent in New England and Virginia, the relation of toleration to colonial culture, the great awakening under Jonathan Edwards, the reorganization of American Protestantism, the relation between religion and capitalism, and recent phases of Anglo-American Protestantism. There is a bibliography [p315-17]" Book rev. digest

"This is an interesting and suggestive book, in spite of its occasional inaccuracies . . . The treatment of Wyclif is perhaps the best part of the book." Living church

Social sources of denominationalism. Holt 1929 304p o.p. 1939 280

1 Sects 2 Sociology, Christian 29-25156

"A discussion of the social character of the Christian churches. Dr. Niebuhr maintains that the caste-system of human society is a more powerful factor than theological differences in determining the character of the various denominations." Book rev. digest

"That the determining factors in the rise of variant types of Christianity have been social and economic rather than theological, is a proposition whose importance exceeds its novelty. It is by no means as well understood yet as it needs to be, and as Dr. Niebuhr's book will cause it to be if it has the reading it deserves." Christian century

A reprint of the edition first published 1929; which has been reset with more legible type

"Dr. Adam . . . writes in order to discover the governing ideas, the distinguishing characteristics of Catholicism, and the forces that are consequently set in motion by them. His book is made up of a series of lectures delivered to an audience of mixed religious beliefs in his university." Sat rev. of lit.

"Tolerantly and sincerely written by a German scholar, a devout English Churchman might read this book without wishing to skip more than a few passages. The slight signs of controversy are directed against Lutheranism, not Anglicanism. There is a genuine desire to move out of the rut while keeping rigidly to the lines of the modern Roman Catholic Church." Times (London) lit. sup.

1 Catholic church—History 2 Papacy 39-27170

"A sympathetic treatment of the history of the Roman Catholic church from St. Peter to Pope Pius XI, stressing the earlier period. The spiritual authority of the Pope throughout the world is defended, while the encroachment of totalitarian states on the church's domain is criticized. One chapter explains in detail the functions, activities, and ceremonies of the Vatican." Bkl.

"The author has shown admirable skill in selecting his materials, a true sense of proportion in exhibiting them. The book, of particular interest to non-Catholics, concludes with an interesting description of the administrative machinery of the Curia." Bookmark

"If this book . . . points out in great detail the reactionary or Fascist trend in the Catholic Church rather than the counter movement toward Democracy, it should be taken not as an attack, or an indictment, but as a warning." Foreword

"A penetrating analysis of Roman Catholic tendencies to suppress the free discussion of issues in which the organizational interests of the Church are at stake. The main thesis is that there is a Catholic 'liaison' with Fascism and undemocratic influences, most clearly illustrated in the unqualified support given to Franco in the Spanish War." "An attempt to give . . . the main outlines of the events which make up the Story of the Catholic Church. . . Some care has been taken not to exaggerate the disedifying and scandalous things which impartial study brings to light . . . but there is no intention to make these pages apologetic in the sense of controversial. This outline assumes the truth of the Church's claim as far as anything dogmatic needs to be assumed in a simple narrative. It is meant to be history, but history from a Catholic point of view, unhesitatingly and uncompromisingly so." Preface

Why I am and why I am not a Catholic, by Hilaire Belloc and others. Macmillan 1930 246p $2 282

1 Catholic church—Doctrinal and controversial works 30-30006

Articles contributed by five Roman Catholics: Hilaire Belloc, Archbishop Goodier, Father R. Knox, Reverend C. C. Martindale, and Shelia Kaye-Smith; and five non-Catholics: Reverend W. Orchard, Principal J. W. Oman, Professor A. E. Taylor, Professor H. L. Goudge, and the Lord Bishop of Gloucester

"It is pleasant to observe the good temper of all of the essays and the earnestness with which convictions are set forth and defended. Anglicanism is very much to the fore as we should expect in a work of exclusively British authorship, and Protestantism is most frequently, although not always, referred to as something hardly respectable. This is a severe limitation on both the compass and the usefulness of the volume; nevertheless the subject treated and the distinction of the writers who treat it make it well worth attention." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

1 Oxford movement [A16-389]
First edition 1915

"Canon Ollard long has been recognized as an authority on the subject of the Catholic Revival. His book contains a mass of material, but it is somewhat lacking in organization. Especially valuable are his brief sketches of the earlier Tractarians. While these miniature biographies interrupt the course of the narrative, they do give twentieth century readers accurate pictures of such men as Dykes, Bloxam, Mozley, and Marriott. Almost one-third of the book is given over to discussion of the results of the Movement. . . Splendid illustrations enliven the book, while its style, popular in the best sense of the word, makes it one which can be recommended enthusiastically, to the laity." Living church

1 Lutheran church 33-9558

First published 1923. "This book is based upon an analysis of the facts of Lutheran history in America and a synthesis of those facts in a continuous line of interpretation down to our own day. The main purpose is to enable the reader to see the relation of our Church's history to the history of society in general and so to interpret the main direction of events, particularly in the present day. The first edition of this book was widely used not only by pastors and seminary students but also by young people and in other lay circles. For that reason we have equipped this second edition with some teaching helps." Preface to the revised edition

"Mr. Ferguson's interest in the unusual oddities among religious cults led to research which resulted in the survey of modernisms in the United States. These brief studies, sometimes penetrating, sometimes witty, include Spiritualism, Russellism, Buchmanism, Bahaism, the Swamis and Yogis, Shakerism, Mormonism." Book rev. digest
"Mr. Ferguson does not rate as an authority on the history of religion, but he has worked intelligently with authentic sources of information, and his style is buoyantly, sometimes boisterously, readable —if one is not repelled by apparently flippant treatment of matters which are of tremendous import to those who believe in them." An "exposition of the Quaker faith and way of life... [The author] interprets in a simple way the history, ideals and achievements of Quakerism—its attitude toward war, its practice of the simple life, its faith in love as a method of dealing with our fellows, its service to humanitarianism and education." Book rev. digest
"In this eminently fair-minded volume, Dr. Rufus Jones has endeavoured to state the case for the Quaker position. He does not defend the early extravagances and singularities of the body of which he is himself a distinguished ornament, but he has little difficulty in demonstrating that, on the whole, it has proved a potent factor in the spiritual regeneration of the human race." "The 'Conferences' are attempts to set out the dominant aspects of religious life and thought as they appear to men of the most varied experience, special care being taken to present it as it appears to Orientals. While Mr. Jones examines the meaning and contents of other religions in order to emphasize what is true in them, he shows how Christianity may complete all that they lack of truth or power. With a wide knowledge of Indian religious life and the fervour of an ardent Christian missionary the writer of these chapters makes a stirring appeal to his fellow Christians to offer to others the redemptive power which comes to those who live in the faith of the Gospel." "This is a useful compendium but, it must be admitted, a little heavy. That does not lessen its usefulness, but does lessen the pleasure of use. It is a compendium which contains more within its compass than any other such book which I know." Manchester guardian

Upanishads
Ten principal Upanishads; put into English by Shree Purohit swāmi, and W. B. Yeats. Macmillan 1937 158p $2 294

(W) 37-20457

"These selections from the Upanishads—philosophical poems sung 'by grass farmers thousands of years ago'—were first translated by Shree Purohit swāmi, then rendered into a modern, poetic English prose by the Irish poet W. B. Yeats." Book rev. digest

"To have a new translation influenced in its literary form by so accomplished a literary artist as W. B. Yeats is a real literary event. It is certain that these ancient documents will be more widely read and enjoyed because of the literary quality of this translation." Christian century

1 Philosophy, Hindu 2 Upanishads—Bibliography 32-8958

Minor corrections have been made in this edition, recent works have been added to the annotated bibliography and a list of "Recurrent and parallel passages" by G. C. O. Haas, has been added. The author's aim has been to provide "a faithful rendering of the original Sanskrit texts—a translation which will show exactly what the revered Upanishads say." Preface

"Students of Indian philosophy in particular and Indologians in general have been well aware of the high value of Professor Hume's work. In fact, it may be said that, ever since the publication of the first edition, Mr. Hume's translation became as absolute necessity to all serious students of the Upanishads. The present second edition is much to be welcomed, especially as a valuable new feature is added. This is 'a list of recurrent and parallel passages' prepared by Dr. George Haas." Lao Tzŭ

The way and its power; a study of Tao tê ching and its place in Chinese thought, by Arthur Waley. Houghton 1935 262p $2 299

1 Philosophy, Chinese [35-2314]

"A translation of one of the most famous of all mystical books, with an account of Chinese thought down to the end of the third century B.C. Intended for the general reader." Coventry. Public libraries

"Mr. Waley has produced a remarkable work . . . His book is many things in one: a survey of Chou thought; an interpretation of a noble system of philosophy; a study of customs and manners of an ancient country. His translations 'philological' rather than 'literary' of the classic are models of clarity. Words to Mr. Waley are what colors are to an artist. In subtle, sensitive prose that is the despair of the less gifted, he paints a brilliant picture of a world of ideas." N.Y. Times

1 Sociology 30-14083

First published 1905 under title: "Elements of sociology" by F. W. Blackmar and J. L. Gillin. In the third edition the name of Gillin occurs before that of Blackmar on the title page. Reading assignments, other references and questions are given at chapter ends. Selected bibliography, p667-76

"The chief merit of the book from the theoretical side is that it gives an intelligent statement of the viewpoints of all the leading sociological writers. The chief merit from the practical side is that it touches upon a variety of vital and interesting problems in such a way as to tempt the student to go forward and specialize." 1 Social psychology 2 Sociology 33-4570

"This treatise on sociology is intended for students who are beginning the study of the science. The late Professor Cooley was celebrated for his social theories, particularly as they were elucidated in his 'Human Nature and the Social Order' and in his 'Social Organization.' From these works the junior authors . . . have selected the bulk of the material in this text, adapting it to meet the needs of introductory classes and adding to it such new material as a thorough systematic analysis of the phenomena of human association today requires." 1 Sociology 34-13274

"The twenty-six chapters may be divided into four main sections: the first deals with groups, origins, forces, and interests; the second, with social control and the agencies through which it is effected; the third, with social change; and the fourth, with problems and the tasks of social engineering. . . One of its most significant contributions is the statement concerning the nature and origin of major sociological problems and their associated processes. A challenging survey of current issues is given—problems of social control, population, competitive private profit, and laissez faire." Survey

1 Civilization 2 Social psychology 3 Sociology 32-18861

This account of the development and behavior of human society was arranged and edited for publication by Howard W. Odum after the death of Professor Giddings. The aim of the editor has been to make it possible for the student of sociology and of public affairs to obtain in one volume the essentials of the Giddings sociology

"This volume is characterised by an informal, direct style, and by the scholar's capacity for reducing problems to their essentials. The first twenty chapters are largely ethnological and historical in subject; and the later ones deal with the objective and values of education." Boston

F. H. Giddings's "Principles of sociology" (Macmillan 1896 476p o.p. 1939) is the foundation of most of his later work

" 'The Science of Society' is one of the monuments of social anthropology. It comes as near as any existing work to supplying a great desideratum: a collation without favor or selection of available information concerning pre-civilized society. Dr. Keller has dealt very sensibly with the problem of meeting the . . . demand for a popular epitome. "Mr. Trotter argues that gregariousness is an instinct as powerful and primitive as the sexual, the nutritive and the self-preserving, and that there are times in the life of a people, especially if war exists, when gregariousness masters or at least distorts every other impulse. In 1908 and 1909 Mr Trotter published his articles in the Sociological review. These are now reprinted and immensely enriched by contact with those later developments of abnormal psychology which are due to Professor Freud. In an earlier book, "Human nature in politics," Mr Wallas discussed psychology as a factor in the study of politics. In this later one, which continues the theme with more definiteness of aim and more substance he makes a plea for social psychology as the basis of a study of human nature in mass. By the "great society" he means the complex urban, industrialized society of to-day.

1 Social problems 2 U.S.—Social conditions (W) 39-14072

A textbook in sociology which aims to present a comprehensive picture of the American scene with emphasis on the people and their problems, and to set up a realistic framework of inquiry through which the answers to many of their questions may be sought
"Each chapter is packed with facts, and raises a host of questions as to present and future methods of working out an equitable and just solution to its problem. However the volume will repay the careful reader, or will offer those interested in particular problems an authentic sourcebook. A number of excellent pictures and graphs add interest to the text." 1 Social problems 2 U.S.—Economic conditions 3 U.S.—Social conditions A33-2883

A cheaper reprint in one volume of the two volume edition originally published 1933
The 75 page introduction to this work, constituting a summary of the investigation, has been reprinted for high school students and for adult study groups under the title "American civilization today" edited by J. T. Greenan (McGraw 1934 152p illus maps 80c) No changes or additions have been made in the text, except for the omission of one small section. Vocabulary drills, review exercises and lists of related readings have been added
"In December 1929 President Hoover appointed a committee of experts, under the chairmanship of Wesley C. Mitchell, to direct a national survey of social tendencies, with the emphasis laid on the change rather than on the stable elements of the social organism." Boston
The findings of the committee as summarized in the volume listed above are supplemented by several volumes of special studies embodying the fuller information assembled for the use of committees. The following studies are noted as available in 1939 and are also noted, or entered fully, in the classes in which they belong:

"Falls naturally into two parts. In the first half the author reviews briefly the history of the economic progress of the country, with special emphasis on the technical facilities developed, sufficient for the creation of a 'paradise on earth.' The second is given over largely to the exposition of a program for educating the people to an unbiased understanding of fundamental economic and social facts and of the method of utilizing these facts in a scientific manner. . . The author presents his ideas with commendable orderliness, clarity and unperturbed logic fixed upon a single goal." N.Y. Times

"The arrangement is logical and the treatment of each subject incisive. The exposition is understandable to a beginner and yet is so thorough and well integrated as to be suggestive even to the advanced student. . . Auxiliary aids to clarity, such as tables and figures, are generously employed, and the value of photography as an observational technique is illustrated. The questions and suggestions for further study at the end of each chapter should prove pedagogically valuable." American sociological review

"Two distinctive features mark off this volume from the bulk of the books in the general field of population. The first is the notable emphasis on death as a factor in population growth. . . The contrast which he brings out between ancient and medieval mortality on the one hand, and the modern extension of the life span on the other hand . . . justifies his insistence that the population problem of today is a new problem. . . The other distinctive feature is the author's frank and unrestrained espousal of that solution of the problem represented by the birth control movement." H. P. Fairchild in Survey

"An able survey of what the state is doing to the average citizen in the different countries of the world, under the following headings: Foundations; Political systems; Political machinery; International politics; Political principles; Some underlying political problems; Political theories. [Bibliography]" Ontario library review

"The book has many merits. It distinguishes itself by its analysis of the differences between the British, French, and American forms of Parliamentary democracy, of the characteristics of the modern 'leader,' of the underlying grounds for different theories of the State, and of the place of functional and international groups in the modern community. Against these qualities must be set the exaggerated importance which it attaches to Communism." Times (London) lit. sup.

1 Philosophers 2 Political science—History (W) 39-30921

"A guide to political theory intelligible to the common reader, with quotations from the original sources. . . This history of theory has been placed against brief descriptions, as background, of the civilization of the times. . . The stress, however, is upon modern times and upon past thought and problems so far as they bear upon the rival philosophies of these times." Preface

"Written . . . from a coherent, mature point of view which will delight the 'politically inclined' with its incisive statements, its shrewd argumentation, and its wealth of associational detail. It has been a long time since so provocative a treatment of Plato has appeared, and among other moderns (for in Mr. Catlin's hands Plato is as much alive as any contemporary) Pareto, Kautsky, and Lenin are presented in an equally rousing and dynamic manner." 1 Political science—History 31-19402

"It is no surprise to find sound thought and good writing in the . . . volume edited by Professor Hearnshaw. Nothing could be better as an introduction to that turbulent period which in so many ways resembles our own age. The editor himself writes brilliantly on Burke, the one true Conservative in the list. The other contributors are concerned with Radicals of every degree from the self-satisfied Bentham, well portrayed by Professor J. W. Allen, to that queer anarchist, William Godwin. . . The American, French, and German theorists are competently handled, as well as our English thinkers and dreamers, and to each chapter is added a really good bibliography." Spectator

Corey, Lewis
* Crisis of the middle class. Covici 1935 379p $2.50 323.3

1 Communism 2 Economic conditions 3 Middle classes 4 Socialism 35-33155

Traces the history of the middle class from its earliest struggles for recognition to its present propertyless state which is due, according to the author, to the onslaught of the capitalistic system. A socialist state is held out as inescapable. References to the literature are contained in the notes at the end

"As a penetrating study of middle class changes and problems his book is important." N.Y. Times

1 Leisure class [12-5177]

First published 1899; revised 1912. Also obtainable from the Modern lib. at 95c

"Whatever may be the deficiencies of Veblen in the scientific role which he assumed, the effect of his work has been to stimulate some of the best scientific work of the present century in the field of the social sciences. . . Economic science is less committed to the discovery of hypothetical economic laws, and more committed to a realistic explanation of economic behavior and the functioning of the economic order. The most various factors have led to this change of direction. But no single individual has had a larger hand in it than Veblen." Odum's American masters of social science

"The author draws on hitherto unpublished sources. From the Spanish-American war to the current hostilities in China, every phase of American Far Eastern policy is meticulously described and voluminously documented. More than this, each successive period is given its full-rounded setting in world politics." Sat. rev. of lit.

"The chief merit of the book is its evaluation of our Far Eastern policy in proportion to this country's foreign policy as a whole. Despite the fact that the author takes much care in presenting even seemingly unimportant details, the book has no dull passages." Survey graphic

1 Capitalism 2 Economics 3 U.S.—Economic conditions 40-4776

"From his statistical experiences of the past the author develops the thesis that only through capitalistic production and exchange have people risen from barbarism and poverty to affluence and culture. He believes that great wealth in the hands of a few individuals improves business by producing new capital and industrial expansion; he is therefore against the reduction of net profits. Depressions, he thinks, are caused by the over-expansion of bank credit. Written in fast-moving, verbless

1 Currency question 2 Economics 3 Wealth 33-11685

First published 1926. This reprint is augmented by a "Foreword to the American nation" and an "Addition" in which the author compares his proposals with those of the Douglas school, the Technocrats and other exponents of the new schools of thought. The author's theory is that the problem of distribution can be solved only by a perfectly controlled currency system
"Professor Soddy has written a profoundly interesting book. He does not always cover fresh ground but he brings an entirely fresh point of view, and the value of it lies in the conjunction of absolute fearlessness with a close and masterly logical analysis." Saturday rev.

Originally published by Covici in 1933. This cheaper edition has a new introduction and a note on the New Deal
"The major part of his book is devoted to an analytic study of those central weaknesses of capitalism which, in Mr. Strachey's opinion, render any permanent recovery impossible. He subjects to this remorseless fire the economic theories of Sir Arthur Salter and J. M. Keynes, the free traders, the national planners, Ramsay MacDonald and the British Labor party, and all those other props on which capitalism depends. . . Whether one tends to agree with him or not, this is as stimulating and arresting a book as the current crisis has produced." Forum

"Mr. Strachey's book is an attempt to prove that capitalism will not work, no matter how modified, because it is based upon unsound principles. The alternative is, of course, Communism, and since Mr. Strachey is a Marxist, he argues that the best course for intelligent people to pursue is to hasten the coming of Communism." N.Y. Post

"The subtitle, 'Man's victory over nature' gives the keynote of this book. Conditions under the old regime in Russia and under the new are contrasted, and scientific investigations and possibilities described so vividly that the reader sees the earth of the future, as if it were here now. Rivers are to be harnessed, deserts restored to fertility, forests to rise and giant plants and animals to be developed all under the control of a new, united human race." Book rev. digest

"The author went to Russia and lived for some months among the peasants and workers while he was investigating the problem: What induces Soviet citizens to exert themselves? He describes the passing of the old life in Russia and the coming of the new, but devotes most of the book to the investigation of the reactions of the masses to the Five-year-plan and the new ideal. Short bibliography." Book rev. digest

"It is worth reading for its exposition of Communist ideas and goals, for its painstaking record of the various non-materialistic stimuli which have been introduced in Soviet factories and offices, for its sympathetic interpretation of the new Communist ethical and social conceptions." "An analysis of economic events. The author describes plenty in terms not of its sales value but of its serviceability: power to give us all food and shelter, fun and security. Poverty in the midst of plenty is no paradox, the author insists, but the logical outcome of a system in which the supplying of human needs is only a by-product. This book surveys the field ... industry by industry, showing the technical potentialities behind estimates and certain important limitations on future expansion." Book preview

"It's not a pretty story Mr. Thomas tells, but it's one that needs to be known. As usual his writing sounds a note of deep sincerity and scholarliness. Industrial valley. Harcourt 1939 379p illus maps $3, pa 98c 331.88
1 Akron, Ohio—Social conditions 2 Labor and laboring classes 3 Strikes and lockouts 4 United rubber workers of America (W) 39-27089
A study of the great rubber-manufacturing city of Akron. The author gives a composite picture of Akron life from 1932-1936 with labor problems naturally in the foreground
"'Industrial Valley' has all the dramatic elements that make good fiction to recommend it and all the facts and emphasis that make vivid, if one-sided history. Miss McKenney tells the absorbing story of the labor pains and birth of a strike and describes with masterly hand the sluggish awakening of an industrial giant." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

1 Knights of labor 2 Labor and laboring classes 3 Trade unions 29-4787
"Norman J. Ware's account of the period in the history of organized labor (from the beginning of the Civil War to the closing years of the nineteenth century), outlines the rise, power, and decline of the Knights of Labor and the emergence of the American Federation, when the leadership of Gompers gradually supplanted that of Powderly." Review of reviews
"A valuable contribution to the history of American labor leaders, and a new light on the factional internal fights and jealousies of the knights." Amer. hist. rev.
Selected bibliography: p 393-97
N. J. Ware's "The industrial worker, 1840-1860" (Houghton 1924 xxi,249p $2.50) is notable for its treatment of early factory conditions.

331.8 A19a 1934 1 Anarchism and anarchists 2 Labor and laboring classes 3 Strikes and lockouts 4 Trade unions 5 U.S.—Social conditions 34-22408
First published 1931. According to the author "the original version had several flaws. Some of those flaws I attempted to remove in this revised edition. Then, too, much has happened on the capital-labor front since 1931; so I have added paragraphs and sections dealing with those events." Author's note
"'Dynamite', first published in 1931, reflected to a large degree the pre-1929 cynical and muckraking attitude toward a labor movement in decline. Adamic has changed considerably since then, with the result that he has made a few, but not enough, revisions. His new attitude appears most clearly in the new chapter at the end dealing with developments during the depression; it is positive, radical, suggestive. The whole tone of the chapter clashes with the tone of the earlier chapters." Nation

Spy overhead; the story of industrial espionage. Harcourt 1937 363p illus $2.50 331.89
1 Labor and laboring classes 2 Spies 3 Strikes and lockouts 37-27492
"The sordid story of labor spies, strike breaking, and intimidation revealed in the Civil liberties investigation conducted by Senator La Follette's committee. The part played by the Pinkerton and Burns detective agencies, and by gas and arms manufacturers, is told as it came out in testimony and correspondence." Bkl.

1 Cotton growing and manufacture 2 Labor and laboring classes 3 Strikes and lockouts 4 Trade unions 31-8408
"Mr. Tippett is straightforwardly sympathetic to labor and its aims in the recent and future struggles in the South. . . The book is full of human drama and tragedy. However, its greatest value, to my mind, does not lie in the description of violent, dramatic and tragic incidents, but in the presentation of hard economic facts behind those incidents." L. "To the younger generation of men in Wall Street Mr. Noyes is probably best known as the financial editor of the New York Times. The older generation however, remembers him as the able and influential financial editor of the old Evening Post. . . The doings of the market place, however, are not all the story that Mr. Noyes has to tell. He writes interestingly of the ways of New York City when his journalistic life began, of the personalities of Godkin, Horace White and others of The Evening Post staff and the characteristics of that journal, of his contacts with Major Putnam and other publishers, and of Mr. Ochs and Rollo Ogden of The Times." Pound sterling; a history of English money. Oxford 1931 367p illus $6 332.4

1 Currency question—Great Britain 2 Money—Great Britain 32-3705

"We have to regard his work not as a topical contribution to current controversy, but as a scholar's history of the pound sterling from the Middle Ages to 1925. The earlier chapters gather together a good deal of material not otherwise easily accessible. . . . His account, even when it is not original, is uniformly clear and lucid. He is especially good in dealing with the monetary controversies of the early nineteenth century." New statesman and Nation

1 Commercial policy 2 Economic policy 3 Mineral industries 4 Mines and mineral resources 5 World politics 31-3476

"In preparing a clear, readable, compact, yet comprehensive outline of the present knowledge of minerals in their world relations, and of many of the intricate and conflicting political problems, both national and international, growing out of the present-day hugely accelerated use of minerals Dr. Leith has not only added impetus to the work of the Mineral Inquiry Committee and similar technical committees abroad but has given to the ever increasing number of those interested in world affairs a . . . comprehensive and well-rounded insight into . . . international relations." Geographical review

Read, Thomas Thornton, 1880-
* Our mineral civilization. Williams & Wilkins 1932 165p (Century of progress ser.) $1 338.2

1 Mineral industries 2 Mines and mineral resources 3 Petroleum 32-33044

Devoted to a story of progress in the use of minerals. The author stresses the enormous multiplication of man's natural capacities to enable him to do work that could not be done before, as well as to increase the output of work, thanks to his use of minerals, and points out how man's senses have been greatly intensified through his employment of mineral resources." Industrial and engineering chemistry

Roush, Gar A. 1883-
Strategic mineral supplies. . . McGraw 1939 485p illus $5 338.2

1 Mines and mineral resources 2 War—Economic aspects 39-21866

"A study of those materials of mineral origin whose domestic supply is inadequate for the industrial or military needs of the United States. The book reviews the uses, substitutes, ore reserves, world and home output, political and commercial control, prices, tariffs, and the general domestic situation of each of 12 minerals. Charts and tables. Based on a series of articles in 'The Military Engineer.'" Bkl.

United States. Bureau of mines
Minerals yearbook. Supt. of doc. $2 338.2

1 Mineral industries (33-26551)

Annual. First published 1933 for 1932-33. Takes the place of various former publications, including "Mineral resources of United States", which has been issued annually for half a century; it also renders unnecessary various interim summaries and presents all this material in more usable form at an earlier date

Voskuil, Walter Henry, 1892-
Minerals in modern industry. Wiley 1930 350p illus maps $3.75 338.2

1 Mineral industries 31-644

"Devoted to a study of the economics of the mineral industry, and provides essential facts relative to their occurrence, production, and utilization, and their relation to transportation, manufacture, and commerce. The discussion is confined largely to conditions existing in the United States, with occasional reference to foreign trade. . . The work supplements in a most excellent manner other publications devoted more specifically to certain phases of the production and the use of minerals. It furnishes a comprehensive although not too detailed review of the occurrence and the use of the essential economic minerals." Annals Amer. acad.
Literature on minerals: p338-41

338.4 Manufactured products

In addition to the books entered in this class, the following title is recommended:

Bent, Silas. Machine made man. Farrar 1930 341p illus o.p. 1939 A study of the effect of the machine age on mankind

Chase, Stuart, 1888-

Reprint of a book originally published in 1929

Chase, Stuart—Continued

"What are machines? What are the lines of development of the machine age since James Watt? What is it doing to the factory worker, to craftsmanship, to the quality of the output, to art, to recreation, to the individual and to society? One by one the author enumerates all the major effects, sinister and beneficial, of the machine's activity, which can be isolated. Lively in style and provocative of thought. Selected bibliography. N.Y. libraries

Filene, Edward Albert, 1860-1937

Successful living in this machine age, by E. A. Filene in collaboration with C. W. Wood. Simon & Schuster 1931 274p $2.50 338.4

1 Economics 2 Industry 3 Machinery in industry 31-28510

"Mr. Filene, called by some the philosopher of our Machine Age, tries to prove that mass production is making the world beautiful and gives each individual time to appreciate beauty, to study, to take on a new culture and an understanding of human relations." Providence

Hempel, Edward Henry

Economics of chemical industries. Wiley 1939 259p illus $3 338.4

1 Chemicals—Manufacture and industry 39-2047

"It is the purpose of this book to familiarize the readers and especially students with the characteristic background and the economics common to the American chemical industries. . . . Its main aim is to demonstrate what has been done so far in chemical economics, and it describes the dangerous as well as the practical and useful economic policies which should be understood by those who actually are or hope to be dependent on the industry." Preface

Henderson, Fred

Economic consequences of power production. Day 1933 220p $2 338.4

1 Economics 2 Machinery in industry 3 Power (Mechanics) 33-14278

First published in England in 1931. "Mr. Henderson's thesis is that the present economic system has been rendered obsolete and unworkable by the world's advance in productive power, and by the changed technique of modern production." New statesman and Nation

"The book is moderate in tone and well written, and thereby gains much in persuasiveness. The analysis of the change in industrial forces due to the control of power is excellent, and much of the criticism of the present industrial and financial system is penetrating and convincing." Times (London) lit. sup.

O'Connor, Harvey

Steel—dictator. Day 1935 383p illus map $3 338.4

1 Steel industry and trade 35-22350

"Carnegie, Gary, Schwab, Weir, and others play their part in the dramatic story of the steel industry's rise to power. Mr. O'Connor is interested in interpreting, in a brisk, sometimes cynical manner, the facts behind history, textbooks, and the daily newspaper." Cincinnati

338.5 Prices. Cost and standard of living

In addition to the books entered in this class, the following title is recommended:

Fisher, Irving. Purchasing power of money; its determination and relation to credit, interest and crises [written with the assistance of] H. G. Brown. 2d ed Macmillan 1913 xxii,505p illus o.p. 1939

Berle, Adolf Augustus, and Means, Gardiner Coit, 1896-

* Modern corporation and private property. Macmillan 1932 396p illus $3.75 338.7

1 Corporation law 2 Corporations 33-11766

Originally published by the Commerce clearing house

This is a searching inquiry into recent trends in the concentration of business under large corporations, with diffusion of ownership among millions of stockholders and into the law under which this centralization of management has taken place

Berle, A. A. and Means, G. C.—Continued
"Clearly organized, lucid, scrupulously documented. It is seldom one finds such epoch-shattering material clothed in such scholarship." New republic

Kennedy, Edward D.
Dividends to pay. Reynal 1939 288p $2.50 338.7

1 Corporations 2 Monopolies 3 U.S.—Economic conditions (W) 39-29704

A study of depressions and recoveries made thru an investigation of the income of corporations
"Offering no solution or program to take the place of the present system, the author argues that the profits of large monopolistic corporations are practically depression proof and are out of proportion to those of smaller corporations, and that the few who are making the money do not pay out enough of it to keep the capitalist economy expanding. Thus he believes that the present depression is the normal state." Bkl.

Twentieth century fund, inc.
Big business, its growth and place. . . The fund 1937 102p $1.35 338.7

1 Corporations 37-2876

"This volume attempts to show how large big business bulks, in comparison with smaller concern, on the American economic map as a whole and on the various sectors of the map which represent specific industries and groups of industries." Foreword
Contents: Growth and extent of incorporation; Rise of large corporations; Concentration of operating units; Concentration of corporate wealth; Concentration of corporate income; Concentration in banking; Concentration of the total national income produced

The Twentieth century fund has also prepared "How profitable is big business" (The fund 1937 201p $2) as a continuation with facts on the relationship between size and profits, income and outgo, turnover of capital and size of dividends. Holding company, its public significance and its regulation. McGraw 1932 398p $4 338.8

1 Holding companies 32-8783

"Corporate Pyramids of the twentieth century, more generally known as holding companies, are described and analyzed searchingly by Messrs. Bonbright and Means in their large book on the subject. Industrial utility, railroad and bank holding companies are considered, with most space given to utilities and railroads. . . Throughout, the authors urge the imperative need of state and federal control of holding companies for the protection of the patrons of subsidiary companies and of the investing public." Engineering news

Income structure of the United States; by Maurice Leven assisted by K. R. Wright. Brookings 1938 177p illus (Brookings institution. Institute of economics. Publications) $1.50 339

1 Income 2 U.S.—Economic conditions (W) 38-27184

"Not merely presents important information as to the distribution of the national income among the several groups but also analyzes the factors which determine or influence it. The period covered is from 1929 to 1936, with emphasis on the changes in income distribution which have taken place." Preface

"The book is, as the author indicates, a work of clarification. The data assembled are not original but their presentation in this compact form is a work of great value." Survey graphic

Lundberg, Ferdinand, 1902-

* America's 60 families. Vanguard 1937 544p $3.75 339

1 Capitalists and financiers 2 Finance 3 Wealth 37-30388

Also obtainable from Blue ribbon bks. at $1.39

"The basis of [the author's] argument is the fact that there are sixty families of great wealth in the United States, with a possible ninety in a secondary rank, who are the center of 'the modern industrial oligarchy which dominates the United States.'" Book rev. digest

"The book's strength is in its contribution to an understanding of the times, and the important factual detail it exhumes lends stimulating and provocative significance to what would otherwise be merely an angry essay in heterodoxy." Christian science monitor

Myers, Gustavus, 1872-

Ending of hereditary American fortunes. Messner 1939 395p $3.50 339

1 Capitalists and financiers 2 Finance 3 U.S.—Economic conditions 4 Wealth (W) 39-32428

A study of American wealth which supplements a former book entitled "History of the great American fortunes"

"Blasting at the fraud and corruption that surrounded the establishment of many fortunes, Mr. Myers presents the case for the prohibition of trusts and the transfer of great wealth, and shows what has so far been done in this direction by legislation." Cincinnati

* History of the great American fortunes. Modern lib. 1936 732p (Modern lib. giants) $1.25 339

1 Capitalists and financiers 2 U.S.—Economic conditions 3 Wealth 36-31209

A completely revised edition in one volume of the author's 1909 work which appeared in three volumes. To bridge the gap of twenty-five years the author has done so much revising and adding of new material as to make this practically a new text. Among the fortunes mentioned are those of Astor, Vanderbilt, Rockefeller, Morgan, Mellon, and many others

339.1 Poverty

Minehan, Thomas

* Boy and girl tramps of America. . . Grosset 284p illus $1 339.1

1 Tramps 2 U.S.—Social conditions 3 Youth 34-17287

Reprint of a book originally published by Farrar in 1934

"Written from first hand experience and concerned with one of the saddest products of the economic depression, the thousands of homeless young boys and girls under eighteen. . . The general reader, as well as the sociologist, will find this strong and bitter problem one of engrossing interest." Cincinnati

Riis, Jacob August, 1849-1914

How the other half lives; studies among the tenements of New York. . . Scribner 1903 304p illus $2 339.1

1 New York (City)—Poor houses—New York (City) 2 Tenement 4-4219

As a newspaper reporter in New York, the author had opportunities to see all phases of life among the poor and especially to see the evils of the overcrowded tenements. He describes the picturesque life of the East side and suggests ways of improving conditions. A book still well worth reading for its interest and sympathetic spirit and because many of the evils it describes still persist in large cities

Jackson, Percival E. 1891-
Look at the law; the law is what the layman makes it; foreword by A. G. Hays. Dutton 1940 377p $2.75 340
1 Justice, Administration of 2 Law (W) 40-27271

The purpose of this book is to clarify the law in relation to the individual. It attempts to make the law comprehensible to the layman

"Legal processes today are, in the author's opinion, too slow, too uncertain, and often very dishonest. He analyzes some of the technicalities, argues that the layman is in part responsible for conditions, and indicates remedies. His writing is frank and illuminating, although possibly one-sided." 1 Jury 28-9748

"It will be found to touch upon three leading propositions of discussion or debate, i.e. that the jury system should be abolished; that decision by three judges should replace decision by jury; and that three-quarters majority of a jury, or less than a unanimous vote, should be sufficient to render a decision except in the matter of inflicting the death penalty. For convenience, material and bibliography are grouped as general material, material favorable to the jury, and material opposed to the jury." Introduction

"Explains the elements of the common law in terms intelligible to the layman, illustrated by actual cases and by reproductions of aquatint engravings by Thomas Rowlandson and A. Pugin of the courts that once clustered around Westminster Hall." Book rev. digest

"The author has written a book admirable in scope and clarity. His effort to show the laymen that 'law is a living thing and not, as tradition would have it, a dry-as-dust affair' is more than slightly successful and the interesting paths he follows back through the common law will be an education to many." 1 Jury 2 Law—Anecdotes, facetiae, satire, etc. 24-25300

"From his experience of more than a thousand cases tried before juries, the author addresses himself particularly to those jurors who have never been in court before. He deals with the chief elements that the juror has to contend with: the witnesses, the lawyers in the cases, the judges, and the rendering of a verdict. Methods of distinguishing truth from falsehood are explained and the means by which lawyers try to distort or conceal evidence. Many amusing experiences in open court as well as behind the scenes are related." Book rev. digest

"A study of the problem of disarmament from the technical and scientific point of view, regardless of moral, ethical or political influences. Attempts to answer the questions: What is meant by disarmament? Is it feasible; can it be made practical and effective in terms of honest technical thought? What are the reasoned requirements of disarmament in operation?" Book rev. digest

"This expansion of the Outline sketch of English constitutional history published in 1918, intended for 'the general reader and college student,' will be of special value to the latter in advanced work. Knowledge of political history is assumed. A development of the author's feudal theory of constitutional origins, a brilliant account of seventeenth-century political theory and practice, and penetrating comparisons of things English and American are outstanding features. Half the book is on the twelfth, thirteenth, and seventeenth centuries, an apportionment strikingly appropriate to the subject." Guide to hist. lit.

"Picturesquely are related these sixty-five stories in which an innocent person was convicted. Court records of both this country and England have furnished the material. The author also discusses ways and means of doing away with this abuse or, in the event of unjust punishment, having some system whereby the unjustly convicted may be remunerated." Providence

1 Justice, Administration of 2 Trials 33-23817

"The theme of the book is the 'thirteenth juror,' the part that prejudice plays in trials where mass emotions are involved, by reason of the race, color, religion, politics or opinions of the defendant. The introduction is followed by accounts of notorious cases where prejudice has caused an unjust verdict—the Scottsboro, Mooney and Billings, and Sacco-Vanzetti cases, the Centralia and Gastonia affairs, the case of Leo Frank, and others." Book rev. digest

"The candid reader is convinced of the author's essential fairness. The title of the book only is misleading. This puts the reader on guard, leads him to expect a one-sided and biased attack upon our legal institutions. But Mr. Hays is in no sense a fanatic. He is a practical idealist with his feet on the ground; and his observations and reflections are shot through with a disarming suavity and maturity of judgment which make his mildest criticism more effective than another man's invective." "A comprehensive discussion of local government, both rural and urban. There is also considered the relationship between the central and local administration. Each contributor has included in translation, where required, the local government laws in abbreviated form. Bibliographies and references are placed at the end of each chapter." Municipal reference library notes

Bromage, Arthur Watson
American county government. Sears 1933 306p o.p. 1939 352

1 County government 33-23466

"While the emphasis is on county government, the author also considers other local governments, town, village, special districts. After presenting briefly the historical background of local rural government, he shows its present inadequacy and the obstacles to reform, and describes some proposals for improving existing evils. His conclusion is that there is need for larger county units, eliminating many village and township governments." Wis. bul.

Administrative principles and practices in many fields are covered, including among others the civil service personnel management, revenues and taxation, finance and accounting, purchasing, planning, zoning, housing, law, public health, fire, streets, public utilities, police, education, and elections

"This book will be welcomed by students and teachers of municipal administration, because it seems well suited for text-book purposes. The author has obviously intended the book for this purpose, and he uses numerous charts, diagrams, and illustrations which make more clear what many text-books have treated with word description." Amer. pol. sci. rev.

Macdonald, Austin Faulks
* American city government and administration. rev ed Crowell 1936 773p (Crowell's social science ser.) $3.75 352

1 Cities and towns 2 Municipal government 36-10549

First published 1929. Changes in the form of municipal government and finances since that date have been chronicled in this new edition, especially in the chapters dealing with city—state relations. A new section has been added on relations of city and nation, and on the mechanics of reform movements. The chapters dealing with welfare and housing have been rewritten. Chapter bibliographies

Tho both Macdonald and Munro, listed below, cover the same subjects, they differ in organization of material and in space devoted to various subjects. Macdonald is cast in text book form with problems at ends of chapters, and is devoted to general problems and development of city government, while Munro pictures existing procedure in the seven branches into which he divides the subject

Government of American cities. 4th ed Macmillan 1926 491p illus $3.75 352

1 Municipal government 26-13587

This book deals with the governmental problems of cities in general, while the author's "Municipal administration" listed below deals with the functions and activities of city government in a more practical way

W. B. Munro's "Government of European cities" (rev ed Macmillan 1927 432p $3.75) is a companion volume

* Municipal administration. Macmillan 1934 699p illus map $4.00 352

1 Municipal government 34-14335

"The changes in the technique of municipal administration during the past ten years have been so frequent and of such far-reaching importance that relatively little of the material in the 1923 volume ['Municipal government and administration'] has proved useful in preparing this new edition. For example, the present volume contains new chapters, not contained in the 1923 volume, on traffic regulation, special assessments, abatement of nuisances, inspection of weights and measures, law department, hospitals, public libraries, municipal airports, the city clerk, and various other activities." 1 Detectives 2 Police 39-21432

"A practical handbook to the many types of work. Each chapter is very specific in its statements and though each subject is discussed only briefly, by means of difference in the type used, the essential facts stand out for study. Common problems are given in question-and-answer form, and a section is devoted to definitions of terms that should be familiar. The scientific side of police work is outlined as well. The book has a good index. Captain Skehan writes from experience as he is a retired New York Police Academy instructor." N.Y. Municipal reference lib. notes

1 State governments and government 2 U.S.—Politics (W) 40-4182

New edition of a book first published in 1934. "The chapters on business, labor, welfare, and revenues have been almost completely rewritten. A new chapter has been added on interstate relations. Appropriate sections have been devoted to new state activities, such as liquor control, industrial hygiene, and planning. And the volume has been divided logically into two parts: government and administration." Preface

"Concise but comprehensive treatment of American state government and its place in our constitutional system. The various functions and types of administration are described, together with the political interests and practices that affect their operation. . . . Altogether, the book offers an excellent introduction to the subject that should serve well the needs both of the student and of the citizen interested in this phase of American government." (ed.) Public assistance worker; his responsibility to the applicant, the community, and himself. Russell Sage 1938 224p $1 361

1 Social service (W) 38-27213

"This volume is designed for the use of workers in the field of public assistance and is primarily concerned with the ways in which aid may be given. Its theme is that people in need differ markedly one from another and that only by individualization can the various processes in the granting of assistance be made effective. Its emphasis is on the 'human' rather than the routine aspects of the service rendered." Foreword

Youth in the toils. Macmillan 1938 167p $1.50 364

1 Juvenile delinquency (W) 38-4859

"This book is a study of youthful delinquency. It examines present conditions of crime and punishment among boys between the ages of 16 and 21. It outlines the process of arrest, arraignment, detention and retribution. . . It tells individual stories to illustrate general statements. And it reaches its conclusion in an urgent plea for a complete change in the treatment of that increasing disease of our present society, youthful crime." N.Y. Times

Its very nature is controversial. It judges men of established reputation in the light of their writings and theorizings upon education—and never was there less unanimity of opinion upon that subject. It judges them, furthermore, from a very definite point of view, that of liberal realism." N.Y. State educ. dept.

"The contribution of this book does not lie in the presentation of new material but rather in the organization and presentation of a large body of previously available material in the field of mental hygiene in a manner and language easily understood and designed to facilitate application of the principles. While the theory of mental hygiene receives careful consideration, yet the outstanding feature of the book is the rich body of illustrations showing the practical application of mental hygiene principles in everyday school situations. A selected bibliography adds to its usefulness." N.Y. State educ. dept.

Supervision; principles and practices in the improvement of instruction. Appleton-Century 1938 981p (Appleton ser. in supervision and teaching) $4 371.2

1 School management and organization
2 Teaching 38-17546

The first part of the book presents a new definition of supervision and discusses the administrative phases of the problem. The second and third parts present detailed analytic discussions of techniques available for studying and improving the teacher-learning situations, for appraising results, and for analyzing the curriculum, the instructional materials, and the socio-physical environment of learning. The final part deals concretely with the means and methods of evaluating and improving supervision

Classroom organization and management. World bk. 1933 472p (Measurement and adjustment ser.) $2 371.2

1 School management and organization
2 Teaching 33-7521

This book is the outgrowth of a course in classroom management at the University of Chicago. The purpose is two-fold; (1) to help teachers solve perplexing classroom problems; (2) to provide school supervisors with a critical background and scientific results relating to classroom management

Burton, William Henry, 1890-
Supervision and the improvement of teaching. Appleton-Century 1922 xx, 510p illus $2.25 371.2

1 School management and organization
2 Teaching 22-12483

"A textbook dealing in a practical manner with the methods of supervision, dividing its problems into four groups—those having to do with the improvement of class procedure, with the selecting and organizing of subject matter, with the use of tests and measurements, and with the improvement and rating of teachers. Addressed primarily to the superintendent, building principal and grade supervisor, but useful also to supervisors in rural districts and of special subjects. Annotated bibliographies at chapter endings and lesson plans and reports in appendix." Bkl.

Teacher and school organization. Prentice-Hall 1936 xxviii,656p illus (Prentice-Hall educ. ser.) $2.80 371.2

1 School management and organization
2 Teachers 36-36986

"This book was written to provide a preparation for more satisfactory participation of teachers in the administrative activities which are increasingly being assigned to them. It seems to fit that need admirably. It would serve very well as a textbook on a first course in school administration. It should prove most helpful, also, to the teachers and administrators who wish to have easy access to the results of research on the many problems considered in this book." Social studies

Educational measurements and the classroom teacher. [rev ed] Appleton-Century 1931 400p illus (Century education ser.) $2.25 371.26

1 Mental tests 31-2706

"Written with the double purpose of serving as a hand book for teachers in service and as a text for students undergoing teacher training. The first four chapters define the need and the aims of standardized educational measurements, and the rest of the book describes actual tests and scales in several subjects of the elementary and secondary school curriculum." Book rev. digest
"It is not an advanced treatise on the fine points of testing, but it is a very practical book for the use of those who want to know something about tests, the characteristics of particular tests, and the use that can be made of tests." Elementary school jour.

A revision of the author's "How to measure in education" published 1922. There are substantial changes in book 1 and some revision in other sections

It "will find a useful place in the literature of measurement. Although the book does not fully meet the specifications set forth in the none too modest statement of the Preface . . . it has substantial merit and it offers to the teacher of measurement a great deal of useful material. It will be of interest also from the standpoint of revealing the present thinking of a competent and productive leader." Elementary school jour.

Folkways the author defines as "ways of doing things" which are gradually recognized as expedient and develop into established customs. Their origins are lost in mystery, but they are always and everywhere a controlling social force, regulating in every detail the life of uncivilized races and hardly less potent in the life of civilized peoples. With great labor Professor Sumner has assembled a mass of materials, gathered from almost all accessible sources, and with rare insight and scientific caution has sought to elicit their meaning. The result is an important contribution to the scientific study of society. Condensed from Nation

1 Drinking customs 2 Tea 32-30763

"Essays dealing with the coming of tea to England, and its place in English history and letters. Includes a chapter on Dr. Samuel Johnson as tea-drinker." Boston

"There must be enough of us with the right attitude toward tea to make an impassioned audience for Miss Repplier's new book. Jacket to colophon, its 'steamy column' rises from the social brew. For it is in its friendly, conversation-stimulating aspect that it takes possession of these charming pages—in the English aspect, not the Oriental." M. L. Becker in Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

* Tyranny of words. Harcourt 1938 396p illus $2.50 412

1 Semantics 2 Thought and thinking (W) 38-27018

The author explores the little-known science of semantics, that is, the meaning of words and their use as communication. In the first half of the book, he has made

a popularization of the difficult study of semantics, based on the authoritative works of four experts in this field. From this study he builds a semantic discipline which the reader may apply to philosophy, economics, law, logic and politics. The second half of the book is a practical application of the discipline to the confused use of abstractions such as idealism, liberty, new deal, fascism, etc., used by orators, editorial writers, diplomats and judges

1 English language—Pronunciation 36-15897

A reprint, with the addition of four pages, of the edition of 1930

"The book is technical throughout in its exposition of how phonetics and intonation can be so applied as to simplify, standardize and make more pleasant the pronunciation of English. Mrs. McLean stresses the need of general speech education and training in this country as the only remedy for our provincialized, indistinct and inelegant speech, and she sees the training of teachers in normal schools as the primary necessity." "In 1851 [Trench] established his fame as a philologist by 'The Study of Words,' originally delivered as lectures of the pupils of the Diocesan Training School, Winchester. His purpose, as stated by himself, was to show that in words, even taken singly, 'there are boundless stores of moral and historic truth, and no less of passion and imagination laid up'—a truth enforced by a number of most apposite illustrations. It was followed by . . . 'English Past and Present' (1855). [Both] have gone through numerous editions and have contributed much to promote the historical study of the English tongue."
